LOAN OF $346,000 FOR NEW CITY JAIL APPROVED BY PWA

Work on Completely Modernized Police Station Expected To Start in 60 Days; 115 Men Will Be Given Employment.

JAIL WILL PROVIDE FOR 430 PRISONERS

Many Improvements Included in Plans; Key To Fight Any Move To Shift Building Site.

Atlanta Wednesday received its first recognition from the public works administration when a loan of $346,000 for reconstruction of the police station was approved.

Work on the structure, which will furnish jobs for 115 men for 10 months, will begin in about 60 days. A total of $172,000 of the aggregate expenditure will be for labor, according to estimates by Burge & Stevens, architects.

The new building will comfortably house 430 prisoners, and will provide space for recorders' courts, the chief, captains, signal department, administrative offices and a kitchen, in addition to the cell blocks, which will be constructed to house 163 white men, 40 white women, 166 negroes and 61 negro women.

The present old station on Decatur street, according to tentative plans, will be remodeled for an administration building, while the main cell blocks will front on Butler street. In addition, the public works administration Wednesday authorized a loan and grant of $12,000 for addition of one story and construction of an auditorium for the school at Roppleville, Ga., and a grant of $1,100 was made to Maxey (Ga.) school for remodeling purposes.

New Site Is Opposed.

There was some discussion Wednesday of the possibility of securing another site for the police station, but it is known that Mayor Nathan Phillips and other council leaders will fight any such proposal unless there still remains a possibility that a joint city and county jail and criminal building can be erected.

Architects Wednesday estimated that they can complete drawings within 30 days from the time the tentative sketches are approved, and another 30 days probably will be required to let the contract.

Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, prepared to hold a conference today with Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, and a special council committee to devise ways of financing a new jail, with a view of having the plans sanctioned at the earliest possible moment.

Gilliam Went to Capital.

It was Gilliam, on a suggestion by Thomas C. Partridge, Atlanta attorney, who went to Washington to meet Herbert Hays, attorney, and battled down opposition to a loan to Atlanta for the jail.

Partridge proposed posting the refunding bonds to secure the loan, and after two trips to Washington, Gilliam and Hays convinced the public works administration that the bonds are good security and they were accepted as collateral.

A total of $265,908 in such bonds have been posted with the federal government. They bear interest at the rate of 4-1/2 per cent until retired as follows:

July 1, 1934, $58,532; July 1, 1935, $65,450; July 1, 1936, $64,320; July 1, 1937, $64,320.

Mississippi Death Case Is Summarily Closed

Meridian, Miss., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The strange death of Dr. B. L. Robinson, 60, prominent Meridian physician, who investigators said was shot to death at his dinner table Monday night, was officially announced today as a "closed case" in which no arrests would be made.

Shortly after funeral services from the late residence had been held this afternoon, County Attorney Eugene Seal, last of the local authorities to complete a private inquiry, issued a statement which said:

"So far as the prosecuting authorities are concerned, the case has been fully investigated and the true facts ascertained and nothing found to sustain any criminal charge."

GENERAL JOHNSON TO MAKE ADDRESS TO SOUTH TONIGHT

Hard-Hitting NRA Director Will Deliver Major Speech in Auditorium at 8 O'Clock.

Two-fisted General Hugh S. Johnson, hard-hitting champion of the NRA Blue Eagle, tonight at the city auditorium will seek to bring Dixie-wholeheartedly within the brood of the eagle when he makes his scheduled midnight appearance in the southeast.

Riding the mechanical prototype of the eagle, an airplane, General Johnson will land at Candler field at 6 o'clock. His meeting at the auditorium is set for 8 o'clock and his speech will be broadcast over a nation-wide Columbia hookup from 8:30 to 9 o'clock.

General Johnson will go to Warm Springs for a conference with President Roosevelt at the "Little White House."

General Johnson will be met at the airport by a group of Atlantans led by Robert E. Maddox, general NRA chairman for Atlanta; and including Herbert E. Choate, president of the Chamber of Commerce; W. L. Mitchell, director of the NRA; and Mrs. Oscar Palmer, vice chairman of the Atlanta NRA organization and Mrs. Max Land, chairman of the women's NRA committee.

The NRA chieftain will be escorted to the city by a guard of motorcycle.

Farm Strikes Opposed By National Grange

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The National Grange today voted condemnation of the farm strike as a means of securing "economic justice" for agriculture.

The vote came after debate which ranged all the way from the advisability of using "condemnation" in the resolution to the question of whether it would imply the Grange was opposed to farmers protesting foreclosure actions.

Herman Ide, Wisconsin state master, presented the original resolution from which the committee version was drafted and he argued for its approval, advising the Grangers that a small minority of farmers' welfare seeking "to force the majority to agree to policies which are unsound."

SEVEN IN CUSTODY IN MYSTERY DEATH OF YOUNG MATRON

Doctor-Mother-in-Law of Chicago Beauty Held After Body Is Found in Operating Room.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(UP)—Earle Wynekoop, husband of the slain Rheta Wynekoop, was ordered arrested tonight by Police Captain John Stege.

The order was telephoned to Kansas City police, where Wynekoop was reported to have left by airplane for Chicago.

The police captain said he had been informed that the young husband had been reported seen in Chicago a few hours before his wife's body was found undressed on the operating table at the Wynekoop home.

It was previously reported that Wynekoop was not in the city at the time of his wife's death.

Who fired the gun that ended the life of the beautiful young woman was a question that baffled police as they wove their way through the strange evidence discovered in the gloomy west side mansion where the tragedy occurred.

One of the outstanding developments of the day was discovered that the life of the young woman, member of a prominent Indianapolis family, recently had been insured for $5,000.

Outstanding in the theories advanced as to how she was slain by a single bullet that entered her back and pierced her heart was the belief of Captain John Stege, an detective, that she was killed while under an anesthetic.

Found by Doctor.

Her body, carefully tucked in a blanket, was found by her 62-year-old mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, former university instructor and member of a wealthy family of medical men and women who have been prominent in Chicago for generations.

Dr. Wynekoop, a dignified, slender, gray-haired woman, and six relatives and members of her household were taken into custody for questioning.

One theory advanced by police was that a drug addict broke into the home in search of drugs, overpowered Mrs. Wynekoop, chloroformed her, undressed her and laid her on the operating table and shot her. Another theory was that she took the anesthetic voluntarily, then was shot.

Mrs. Wynekoop, whose father, B. H. Goshorn, said he had opposed his daughter's marriage and that she had been "dogged" by the Wynekoop family, last was seen at 3 p. m. yesterday when she was in the Wynekoop home. She was reported to police at 10 p. m. by an undertaker.

Police found the body resting on its left side. A cotton undergarment was pulled down to the waist but had not been pierced by the bullet. A blanket and a slip covered the rest of the body. Other clothing was at the foot of the table. The revolver, wrapped in gauze and without finger, was on the table, near a bottle of chloroform. Three bullets had been fired from the gun. One was fired weeks ago, accidentally. A second was in the girl's body. No trace was found of the third.

Persons questioned besides Dr. Wynekoop were a daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, 24; a son, Walker Wynekoop; Miss Edna Hennessey, a teacher who lived in the Wynekoop home; Mrs. Harvey Woods, Miss Frances Woods and Miss Jessie Woods, all relatives, of Joliet, Ill.

Mrs. Wynekoop's husband, Earle, 27, was located today in Kansas City. An aviator, he was employed until recently at the World's Fair.

Dr. Wynekoop's husband, Frank, also was a physician. Two of his brothers are physicians, and one, Dr. Gilbert H. Wynekoop, is in jail on charges of attempting to attack a nurse. He has been in trouble numerous times on similar charges.

Throughout hours of questioning, the 62-year-old woman physician retained the same calm, professional attitude that she displayed Tuesday night when police first questioned her after she found her daughter-in-law's body with a bullet in the heart.

Although the mystery seemed a dozen puzzles in one, Captain John Stege, an detective, and other officers, said that they were confident that they were nearing a solution.

As the inquiry progressed reports came to police that neighbors had gossiped for the last year about the deaths in the gloomy old house of four other persons.

The first of these deaths was that of Dr. Frank E. Wynekoop, who had been prominent in Chicago for years as a physician. His health, neighbors said, previously had been excellent. He was the husband of Alice.

He died in 1929 and in 1930 his adopted daughter, Mary Louise, followed him. The third death was that of Miss Catherine Porter, spinster.

129,260 Jobless Men To Get Federal Work

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The civil works administration today ordered that 129,260 men now out of employment be put to work on federal projects throughout the country.

She Kept a Rendezvous

Mrs. Louise Turk Stanton, Jacksonville (Fla.) society leader and Junior League, is shown above standing beside the airplane in which she disappeared over the Atlantic ocean November 21 after leaving notes which said: "I'm just going out into space to find out what it's all about, and if there isn't anything—there's no, no, no." Mrs. Stanton's husband died less than two weeks ago. All hope of finding Mrs. Stanton's body had been abandoned by Wednesday night. Filers from the airport from which she started her last sky trip Friday will scatter roses from their planes onto the ocean which claimed their flying companion.

Rate warfare between rail and motor bus carriers was declared Wednesday when the passenger bus operators of the southeast met the new rail rate of 1.5 cents a mile, with a cut of 1.3 cents a mile for long-haul through fares, and decided to take their case to President Roosevelt and NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson with a protest against the "injustice of the destructive tactics" of the railroads.

$338,260 RAISED BY CHEST FORCES ON RAILS BY BUSES

"Mopping Up" Campaign Is Launched for Remaining $84,425 Needed.

Assurance that nobody will starve in Atlanta next year, provided the "mopping up" campaign is successful in raising the difference of $84,425 needed to complete the goal of $422,686, was given Wednesday night at the final report meeting of the Atlanta Community Chest drive for 1934 when it was announced that a total of $338,260 has been raised.

Herbert Porter, general chairman of the campaign, expressed gratification over the results of intensive work of 2,500 persons in the field, and said that an excellent showing was made in spite of economic conditions.

Mr. Porter pointed out that more than $90,000 came in last year after the official completion of the campaign and said that if the chest work this year is as successful the ultimate reaching of the goal is certain.

Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, chairman with Mr. Porter, thanked the workers for their loyal and unselfish support of the chest campaign, and said that "there is no greater spirit Atlanta could have." The old-time "Spirit of Atlanta," the pride of the town, was shown "by this group in its work of love, its unselfish devotion to humanity," Mrs. Arkwright said.

Neely Thanks Workers.

Frank H. Neely, president of the chest, thanked the workers for their efforts "on behalf of those people whose salvation you have been."

The closing meeting was held in the city auditorium.

Methodists To Hear Reports On Work in Atlanta Churches

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
The work of Atlanta Methodist churches will be emphasized today in the first day's session of the annual North Georgia conference at Wesley Memorial church, when Dr. R. L. Russell, presiding elder of the Atlanta district, and Mrs. E. N. Good, district secretary for the Woman's Missionary society submit statements relative to their efforts this year.

Last year the Atlanta district raised for all purposes the sum of $500,000 and Dr. Russell says the indications are that the financial reports will be about the same as a year ago. Some 75 per cent of the benevolent askings will be paid in full, while approximately 90 per cent of assessments for pastors' salaries will be paid in full. Some 3,000 accessions to the church membership will be reported.

No special building program has been fostered this year, according to Dr. Russell. Yet one new church building at Bethany has been erected, at a cost of $15,000, with only $1,000 indebtedness remaining. Two new congregations have been organized at McAdams and Sylvan Hills, and unusually good growth has been enjoyed by each, with an increase in membership of more than double at each church.

Wesley's Welfare Work.

Particular emphasis is given the work of Wesley Memorial church, where special welfare work has been promoted for the last two years. In addition to the special welfare work that has greatly aided the city's relief program, regular evangelistic mission meetings are conducted daily.

Dr. Russell says a special petition will be made to this conference session for a more complete co-operation with Wesley Memorial church by the Methodists of the entire conference as a whole. Conference trustees to work

War Is Declared On RAILS BY BUSES

Southeastern Lines Cut Rates to 1.3 Cents Mile. Rails' Tactics' Scored.

Rate warfare between rail and motor bus carriers was declared Wednesday when the passenger bus operators of the southeast met the new rail rate of 1.5 cents a mile, with a cut of 1.3 cents a mile for long-haul through fares, and decided to take their case to President Roosevelt and NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson with a protest against the "injustice of the destructive tactics" of the railroads.

Short-haul bus fares, up to 100 or 150 miles, will be left to the individual carriers to work out on a profitable basis. The opinion was expressed that bus carriers can still obtain their fair share of the business on short hauls with a profitable rate structure.

A native of Oldham, England, Mr. Oldknow was widely known and greatly beloved by the students of Georgia Tech as a staunch supporter and benefactor of the athletic teams of that institution.

For years Mr. Oldknow attended all the games played by the Yellow Jackets of Tech and yearly entertained the members of the football squad at a banquet at his home. He was the friend of every Georgia Tech football coach for two-score years.

Forty years ago Mr. Oldknow came to America and settled in Atlanta. He was always interested in the theater and he utilized his intense interest in a business way to become one of the leaders of the football squad in the early days of fandom.

He opened and operated two of Atlanta's most famous playhouses more than 20 years ago. They were the Alcazar and the Savoy theaters. In his own houses Mr. Oldknow introduced motion pictures to Atlanta.

NEW YORK BANKER HITS UNCERTAINTY OF DOLLAR'S VALUE

Expresses Doubt There Can Be "Dollar of Constant Purchasing Power as Practical Matter."

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—(AP) James P. Warburg, New York banker, who was financial adviser to the American delegation to the London economic conference, declared tonight that he is "up to the latest majority to let the president know that the American people are ready to face whatever suffering there may be in a slow, orderly process of recovery."

A surprise address of the New York banker denounced "controlled inflation," because he did not believe there is any such thing.

"I am also opposed to it even, if contrary to history, it does not become uncontrolled," he stated.

Warburg's address, at the American Academy of Political and Social Science, was an answer to the president's policy for a dollar of constant purchasing power.

"I do not believe that as a practical matter there can be any such thing as a dollar of constant purchasing power," he said.

Referring to the president's message to the London conference, in which he said Mr. Roosevelt "characterized the gold standard as an outworn fetish and announced it was his desire for 'a dollar of constant purchasing power and debt-paying power,'" Warburg said "it was my job to help interpret the exact meaning of this message to the representatives of other nations."

Resigned Position.

"After careful study and consideration," he said, "I decided that it was a job that I was unable to carry out. Accordingly I wrote the secretary of state, as head of the delegation, resigning my position."

"I was particularly careful," Warburg said, "not to let my resignation become known, for the obvious reasons of loyalty and because I was then still hopeful of being able to convince the president that it would be wise to continue his policy."

The United States of America seeks the kind of dollar which a generation hence will have the same purchasing power and debt-paying power as the dollar we have today in the near future."

Professor Fisher said "The central point of this policy is stabilization. It is sincere and able, though not an intention of setting about the task of arousing what I conceived to be a latent inarticulate majority."

"That was in late September. So far I have refrained from public utterance, because I felt that so long as there were those in official position who felt as I do, it was better to hold on in the hope of bringing about a change from within, the least I could do was to avoid any action that might be construed as a change. And that is why I am here tonight."

Let me make one other thing as clear as I can. Since he came into office, I have been privileged to know the president rather intimately, and I have for him both admiration and real affection—admiration for his courage and endurance, and affection for his kindness, his humor and his faith. What I must reluctantly confess is some of the methods by which he seeks to attain his goals, some of the misconceptions that seem to me to becloud his purpose, and the disregard of the accumulated experience of the members of the football squad at a banquet at his home.

"Constant" Dollar Discounted.

"Given the elements of the human mind, it is impossible to have a 'constant' dollar."

Warren Is Landed.

Referring to the resignation of Dr. O. M. Sprague as treasury adviser because of disapproval of the Roosevelt monetary policy, Professor Fisher said "It must be confessed that he is sincere and able, though not an authority comparable to Warren on gold in relation to prices. (He referred to Dr. George F. Warren, of Cornell University, who has been mentioned in some quarters as Sprague's successor.)"

"Already what he (Sprague) predicted would not happen, has happened: a rise in the price level and the depreciation of the dollar in terms of other currencies."

Morgenthau Relaxes Restrictions on Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Morgenthau tonight modified his secrecy order to permit treasury officials to give the press information without reference to himself or his assistant and publicity representative, Herbert Gaston.

It was added, however, that division chiefs would be held strictly accountable for information thus given out pertaining to their divisions and under no circumstances must they divulge information on questions of policy.

Morgenthau agreed that it might be difficult to separate fact from policy in some instances, and said that in case of uncertainty officials must refer to him or Gaston for advice.

Woodin's Statement Criticizing Sprague

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Secretary Woodin, of the treasury, in voicing criticism today of the resignation statement of Dr. O. M. Sprague as special advisor, authorized this comment:

"I must seriously criticize Dr. Sprague for the assertion he practically makes that the United States treasury is placed in a position where it must borrow several billion dollars from the people on bad securities."

"In any way to suggest that United States government bonds are or can be or will be in any sense bad securities is not only a reflection on the wealth and integrity of this country and its people, but impeaches Dr. Sprague's own common sense and competency as a student of finance."

"Further, Dr. Sprague is permitting what he concedes to be a personal embarrassment to becloud his judgment and to ruffle his ordinary good temper."

Fisher Horses Roosevelt Policy ON DEVALUATION

Senator Thomas Denounces Inflation in Address Before Academy of Political, Social Science.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale University, tonight said that the monetary policy of President Roosevelt "is substantially right."

He spoke at a meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, with Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma. The senator said he was "as much opposed to inflation" as the president.

The effect of the gold buying program on government bond prices and on governmental credit was a principal point of the criticism made by Senator Thomas.

Fisher said several issues of government bonds already were under par and argued that if this trend continued, the result would be an inability to float new bond issues and a collapse of governmental credit. This, in turn, he predicted would lead directly to "unrestrained inflation" with the government issuing fiat money to pay its bills.

Price Rise Sought.

The administration's announced purpose is to raise the price of commodities by buying gold at home and abroad and pushing the price of the metal upward. A rollover result is the depreciation of the dollar in terms of other currencies.

The price of domestic gold was set today at $35.76, unchanged from yesterday. Meanwhile, the price of the metal fluctuated from $34.41 to a point below the Washington figure and back again as the dollar sagged against foreign exchange markets.

Generally, it tended to be a trifle firmer. Government bonds sagged in early trading, but subsequent rallies greatly reduced the losses.

While the administration had nothing to say regarding Sprague's assertions other than that its plan and purpose were unchanged, the members of congress and others today engaged in a round of statements on his action and his charges.

Woodin Speaks.

From Secretary Woodin, on leave of absence in New York, came an informal statement taking Sprague to task for impugning the financial integrity of the government.

"It impeaches Dr. Sprague's common sense," he said.

The retiring financial adviser was defended by Senator Reed, republican, of Maryland. His resignation, he said, "should serve as a warning to the country that the national administration stands at the brink of the most dangerous experiment any government has ever undertaken."

Professor James Harvey Rogers, a Yale economist and administration adviser, asserted that of the inflationary pressure attributed to the president, the mildest had been employed. If they proved ineffective, he said, "the danger is that congress will make mandatory more drastic and even uncontrollable measures."

He added, "In that event, it will be a disaster."

Three Put Under Peace Bonds As Result of Row Over Girl

Councilman Homer Foster, Georgia Tech Professor and Druggist To Appear Before Judge.

Homer C. Foster, member of the police committee of council, Professor R. W. Sandelin, instructor in the chemistry department at the Georgia School of Technology, and Dr. D. V. Pitts, who operates a drug store near Little Five Points, will appear before Judge Luther Z. Rosser in municipal court at 10 o'clock this morning for hearing of peace warrants sworn out by Dr. Pitts and Professor Sandelin against each other, and by Professor Sandelin against Foster.

Of course, there's a girl in the case. She is Miss Lillian Day, of an Eighth street address, who is employed in the law office of W. A. Ward, and it all arose out of the fact that both Professor Sandelin and Dr. Pitts have been "keeping company" with Miss Day.

Professor Sandelin, who was released Tuesday night under bond after his arrest on Miss Day's front porch on a charge of disorderly conduct and "suspicion," swore out a peace warrant against Foster and Dr. Pitts late Wednesday afternoon. After a lengthy and wordy informal hearing in Judge Rosser's chambers, Dr. Pitts apologized to Professor Sandelin, and all parties signified their willingness to drop charges, but Judge Rosser impressed upon them that both had taken the law into their own hands with the arrest of Professor Sandelin, set a hearing, and subpoenaed the young lady in question.

Believed Safety Threatened. Informal testimony showed that Dr. Pitts and Professor Sandelin had each been led to believe that his safety was threatened by his rival for the young lady's affections. Foster entered into the case as a friend of Dr. Pitts, he having accompanied police when they interrupted Professor Sandelin's "date" and put him under arrest Tuesday night.

An innovation was introduced in the case when Judge Rosser permitted the three to sign on another's bonds for appearance this morning.

At the outset of the proceedings Wednesday in the municipal court, Judge Rosser flayed Foster for interfering in the case and told him "you have no more standing in this court than any other person here—you're only a city councilman and a defeated one at that."

The municipal judge severely criticized Foster for having a case made against Sandelin in the first place, and also blamed the officers involved in the arrest. He declared there was no charge on the police docket so unjust and unfair as "suspicion."

"It has always been an ambition in my life to sit in police court for about 30 days—I would knock into a cocked hat this habit of making arrests on 'suspicion,'" Judge Rosser asserted.

Two Men Criticized. When Foster and Dr. Pitts appeared for hearing on the peace bonds taken out by Professor Sandelin, Judge Rosser criticized them for their actions and especially condemned Foster for "hiding in Dr. Pitts' drug store" in order to avoid a conference with Sandelin's attorney. The judge threatened to jail both the councilman and the druggist overnight, but relented when Foster apologized and then allowed them to make bond.

When Foster had been at your home tending to your business," Judge Rosser told Foster, "this would never have come about and many persons would have avoided extreme embarrassment by your conduct."

Though the charges against Sandelin have been placed in municipal court, city charges of disorderly conduct still stand and the hearing was set for 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

When called Wednesday the case was set for that time when it was learned that witnesses were unable to appear at the hearing.

WAR IS DECLARED ON RAILS AS BUSES SLASH OWN FARES

Applications to the public service commissions of the states affected will be filed today, it was announced by J. B. DeBerry, chairman of the Southeastern Motor Bus Passenger Traffic Association.

The new rate will become effective December 1, and in the meantime temporary reduced rates will be in effect from midnight Saturday to midnight November 30. The one-way temporary rate will be 75 per cent of the present one-way fare, and the round trip temporary rate will be 135 per cent of the present one-way fare.

The average rate of the motor bus passenger lines now is 2.5 cents a mile.

"Our code has increased the cost of bus transportation by 25 or 35 per cent," DeBerry said. "On the other hand, the railroads have not increased wages, but have borrowed millions from the government to support their systems. Now they come out with a fare of 1.5 cents a mile with the expressed intention of getting back the business they have lost to the bus operators and to private automobiles."

"Only Action Possible." "We do not want to enter a rate war," it is possible to avoid such a conflict, but our action today appears to be the only way out," DeBerry said. "If a conference can be arranged with the president with the rail carriers, we will be more than glad to sit in and help to work out some fair basis on which all can operate, with the proper differential. But, the railroads have gone ahead and slashed rates to an extent that it would take our business away, and we are forced to meet the challenge."

"Our new rate, frankly, will mean a net operating loss to the bus companies. The railroads, in cutting passenger rates, have their freight business to fall back on, but we have nothing else on which to rely. It is unfair for a transportation agency which is really subsidized by the government to force down our revenues when the railroads were exempted from the NRA code, and shortly after bus lines signed the code. However, we are satisfied with our code, if the government will help us put down such cut-throat competition. We want to be good boys and go along with the code."

"Some idea of our problem will be gained by realization of the fact that in order to reach the same revenue they have enjoyed under their old rates, the rail carriers will have to increase their volume of business by at least 350 per cent," DeBerry said. "We are simply protesting against destructive tactics by a competing industry, and we are going directly to the president on the matter, because the rail carriers' action is not compensatory to good business as provided for by the president's program. We believe that the president is interested enough to preserve all competing industries on a fair basis."

"In 1931, the railroads reported to the interstate commerce commission that they lost $600,000,000. The figures for 1932 are not available, but it is certain that they would show more of a loss. And the railroads have kept themselves up by maintaining their freight rates. In cutting their rates as they did, the railroads did exactly what the president doesn't want done. The president wants everybody to get on a profitable basis."

"The shippers have been bearing the costs of railroad operation, but our lines do not handle freight at all—we deal exclusively in passenger traffic."

Meet in Kentucky Today. Under the new rate effective December 1, a round-trip bus ticket will sell for 180 per cent of the new one-way ticket, DeBerry said.

The National Association of Motor Bus Operators will meet in Lexington, Ky., today to take action similar to that taken Wednesday in Atlanta. Among those attending the conference at the Piedmont hotel were C. G. Schultz, of Jacksonville, vice president and general manager of the Southern Management Company, operators of Southern Greyhound Lines and Colonial stages, and president of the Blue Bus Line of Florida; J. G. Gaston, of New Orleans, traffic manager of the Teche Greyhound Lines; Avery Crowe, of Montgomery, president of the Capitol Motor Lines; Jack Berman, of Anniston, Ala., president of Service Stages, Inc.; O. B. Baskette, of Knoxville, Tenn., general manager of Tennessee Coach Lines; D. L. Hood, of Atlanta, president of Hood Coach Lines, and Charles Brown, of Athens, president of Southeastern Stages.

Lines represented included Atlantic Greyhound, Southeastern Greyhound, Colonial Stages, Union Bus Company, Service Stages, Hood Coach Lines, Southeastern Stages, Florida Motor Lines, Teche Greyhound Lines, Capitol Motor Lines, Cavins Coach Company, Queen City Coach Lines, Dixie Greyhound, Alabama Bus Company, Tennessee Coach Company, Union Transfer Lines, East Coast Stages and Consolidated Coach Company.

FLORIDA LINES CUT FARES. OPEN ADVERTISING DRIVE JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 22. (AP)—Dramatic reductions in fares and a $50,000 advertising "Florida drive" in the east and midwest were announced today by T. B. O'Steen, traffic manager of the Florida Motor Lines and affiliated companies.

O'Steen said the tariff reductions would amount to 45 per cent on the east coast of the state and approximately 40 per cent between Tampa and Jacksonville. Round-trip rates will be double the reduced one-way fare, less 10 per cent.

"In co-operation with the motor coach lines of the north, a 'Florida drive' is now in progress throughout the east and midwest, continuing through December and January, and to cost approximately $50,000," O'Steen said.

The reductions become effective November 26, and will apply to several other motor bus lines, O'Steen said.

CRASH DEATHS PROBED BY POLICE

Auto Crash, Fall From Window and Gun Account for Fatalities.

Three men met death Wednesday in Atlanta from violence involving an automobile crash, a four-story fall and a pistol bullet. Police were seeking a hit-and-run driver as the result of the automobile accident; the fall was attributed to investigation, and the death, to be investigated today at an inquest, was tentatively laid to suicide.

Richard R. Prager, 62, of Providence, R. I., whose body was found Wednesday morning under his fourth-story window at the Marion hotel, was shot by a bullet which entered through the head and a pistol wound through the body.

L. W. Towers, 61, of Abbeville, S. C., former Seaboard Air Line railroad engineer, whose body was found on Drewry street with a bullet wound through the head and a pistol wound through the body.

An inquest into Towers' death will be held this morning at the funeral home of Avtry & Lowndes. The body was found face down, with the pistol gripped in the right hand, planted in the head. The bullet entered the back of the head and passed through the brain.

H. J. Towers, of 1489 Beecher street, a brother, told officers that Towers had been in bad health for four years, and that Towers had retired Tuesday night at the home of his nephew, Le T. Kendrick, 946 Drewry street, a few doors from the spot where the body was found. No one heard Towers leave the house during the night, and no one heard the shot, it was said.

Towers is survived by, in addition to his brother and nephew, two sisters, Mrs. C. T. Kendrick, of Atlanta, and Mrs. R. S. Hopkins, of Charlotte, N. C. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of Avtry & Lowndes. Dr. W. H. Knight will officiate. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

A coroner's jury decided Wednesday at the funeral home of Brantley, Bond & Conner, Prager came to his death from an accidental fall.

Mr. Prager's pajama-clad body was discovered by a maid in the morning after his wife was aroused by lights shining in her face and the wind blowing through the open window.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Prager is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Eugene Billedeau. He was engaged in conducting a special sale of scholarships for a local school of music. He was a musician, and was operating the Manhattan Conservatory of Music in New York.

It was believed that Mr. Prager, after being in the room all night, had sought fresh air and became overbalanced as he leaned over the window sill.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Officers were told that a woman jumped from a car which struck White's machine, and that she ran away screaming. The driver going on after the accident.

Dennis Parks, night-watchman at 512 Spring street, reported the escape of the woman and the disappearance of the other car in the collision. White's machine was demolished, police said. White was found lying about 12 feet from the car.

In addition to his wife, White is survived by a son, Marion White Jr., a daughter, Miss Edna Mae White; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. White, of Seaside, Cal.; his sisters, Mrs. Fred Marbut, of Atlanta; Mrs. M. C. Fleming, of Senatobia; Mrs. Sam Corey, of Memphis; Mrs. M. L. Flowers, of Los Angeles; and Miss Grace White, of St. Louis, Mo.

Funeral services for White will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the chapel of Avtry & Lowndes. The Rev. W. S. Smith will officiate. An interment will be in the East Lake cemetery.

Giant Soviet Plane Crashes, Carrying 14 Fliers to Death

MOSCOW, Nov. 22. (AP)—The crash of a Soviet aviation plane in a crash of the newly commissioned aircraft K-7, the largest plane ever overland flying in the world, was announced today.

The accident occurred at 3 p. m. Tuesday when the giant craft, a six-motored monoplane designed to carry 128 persons, apparently was making a trial run from Khar'kov, site of an important soviet aviation plant.

Among those killed were the chief pilot, named Sniegareff; the manager of the assembly branch of the Khar'kov aviation factory; engine constructors, workers in the aviation plant, mechanics, and the communist secretary at the factory.

A soviet government commission was designed to investigate the cause of the disaster and to fix responsibility, pending which full details were withheld.

The plane was called "the pride of the soviet air fleet" and hailed as a "new victory for the soviet aviation industry" when it was commissioned just a week ago. It was built at the Khar'kov plant in seven months.

It was being arbitrarily held down and in addition it is being purposely forced down by the purchase of foreign currencies.

At this point, however, a notable difference in policy appears. Instead of holding the foreign currencies thus acquired, our government is simultaneously converting those currencies into gold. The reason for this difference is perfectly clear. In fact, to do otherwise would be plain folly.

When England went off the gold standard, the Bank of France lost heavily on its great holdings of sterling, and when the United States left gold, England in turn lost heavily in her holdings of dollars. Why should we, after seeing these experiences, lay ourselves open to exactly similar losses?

Results Seen. "Sprague is right that the effectiveness of the policy will be largely negative until the policy is changed. However, it is appearing, and partly as a direct result of our monetary policy, when a farmer sells his cotton, his wheat or his corn at a substantial increase in price as he now does because of the rise in terms of dollars of the world prices of these commodities, it is a direct result of our monetary policy."

"These expenditures, to the extent of the funds involved, stimulate production, consumption, transportation, and employment. The increased purchasing power of other producers of basic raw material has the same beneficial effects."

In Philadelphia, Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale, said the monetary policy of the president was "substantially right." Fisher said the central point of the policy was "stabilization of the national currency relative to gold and in terms of foreign exchange."

In Washington, Senator Dickinson, republican, said that "the administration's monetary policy—or lack of one—is destroying government credit and if continued will cause a collapse of the government fiscal system."

He said large amounts of capital had been withdrawn from the United States since "the president began to flirt with inflation," and that private enterprise was "paralyzed because it doesn't know what will happen to money."

The Iowa said currency stabilization should be undertaken immediately.

IST SEEKS TO DISSOLVE TRUST ARRANGEMENT

Officials Wednesday announced a proposal had been submitted to stockholders in the First National Bank of Atlanta to dissolve the trust arrangement under which the stock of the Trust Company of Georgia is held for the benefit of the stockholders of the First National Bank.

At present a stockholder owning $270 par value of First National stock also owns a certificate of $100 par value of stock in the Trust Company of Georgia through the trust arrangement, under which the bank holds the Trust Company stock in trust against the issuance of the certificate.

If the trust arrangement is dissolved he will receive in exchange for his present endorsed certificate a certificate of stock of $270 par value of the First National and a certificate of stock for $100 par value in the Trust Company of Georgia.

No change in ownership is contemplated but simply a dissolution of the trust arrangement in order to meet requirements of the 1933 banking act.

Teethina Stops Sour Decay In Baby's Bowels

Aside from thoroughly and gently evacuating baby's intestines, it purifies and sweetens the bowels; prevents food fermentation and stops decomposition of fecal matter of the entire intestinal tract. That is why Teethina gives such quick and remarkable relief in constipation, gas, indigestion, occasional diarrhoea and intestinal colic. Teethina contains no strong or foreign chemicals and can be had at any drug store for only 30c.—(adv.)

GUILTY PARENTS

have much to answer for in children's bad laxative habits

THEY think they are doing well by their children... these parents. They give them good food, good clothes, a good education. They are satisfied with themselves... because nobody has pointed out the wrong habits their children are already developing in the direction of constipation and its treatment.

Do your children's thinking for them for a time at least, until they are on the right road! Tell them about the different kinds of laxatives and the dangers of some of them.

Tell them about Feen-a-mint. How it works the way your doctor would have it work if he compounded it himself. Thorough, of course. Gentle and safe—because it's made in the one form that compels thorough chewing. And it's just plain common sense the way chewing insures even, natural distribution. It's the way you eat your food. Check up with your doctor or druggist. They'll tell you why Feen-a-mint is the universal laxative for grown-ups and children. Get a package of this delicious, mint-flavored chewing gum laxative today. You'll never go back to the old-fashioned laxatives.

FRENCH WELCOME HITLER ADVANCES

Door to Peace Open If Germany Approaches With Olive Branch.

PARIS, Nov. 22. (AP)—A government spokesman said today that the French door to peace is wide open to Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, if he cares to enter carrying an olive branch.

The authoritative invitation was made as a comment on an interview with the German chief by Fernand De Brion, a close friend of former Premier Edouard Daladier, published in the newspaper Le Matin.

The interview quoted Hitler as offering peace and security to France in return for equality for Germany.

Le Matin said Hitler visualized the greatest obstacle to accord between France and Germany as the question of the Saar territory, now held by France; the French government spokesman said, the question is whether Chancellor Hitler will submit to the supervision of the armaments we know he is building."

The spokesman rejected the idea of direct conversations between Premier Daladier and Chancellor Hitler suggested several days ago in unofficial circles.

"We are ready to talk through ambassadors," he said, "but we do not see that a meeting of Hitler and Sarraut could clear the atmosphere. Germany has a clean-cut program which needs military force to execute and she rapidly is getting this force."

"If Hitler does not want Alsace-Lorraine (as Le Matin stated) why is it included in this program?"

"The newspaper interviewer did not ask the chancellor about arms supervision, but we are willing to learn the answer through diplomatic channels."

Small sections of the chamber of deputies and of the people, the spokesman added, are eager for direct dealings with Germany, but he denied the report that Le Matin's interview was intended to ploy the ground for French overtures to Hitler.

The newspaper interview said Hitler asked equality for Germany, which he said could be realized "by stages and details talked over."

To give security to France, the spokesman said he would "willingly do anything not involving dishonor or danger to my country."

If France desired to add to a Franco-German accord "the supplementary security of a defensive alliance with England," he added, "I would willingly subscribe to it. I have no intention of attacking our neighbors. Poland now understands that. But, because Poland is nearer Asia than you, she knows us better."

SEVEN IN CUSTODY IN MYSTERY DEATH OF YOUNG MATRON

whom Dr. Alice Wynekoop had treated and who reportedly had a joint bank account with the gray-haired, slender woman physician whose office is reached by passing through musty rooms on the third floor of the building.

The fourth death was that about a year ago of the 85-year-old father of Miss Edith Hennessy, a teacher who lived in the Wynekoop home and one of those questioned tonight.

The fifth death was that last night of Tician-Rheda Rets, whose almost nude body was found in the basement operating room and whose father said that "all the Wynekoops always dogged her."

Dr. J. J. Keane, coroner's physician, disclosed that only 19 drops of blood were found in the basement and said that even though a person under an anesthetic would bleed less when wounded than a conscious person that the bullet wound must have caused far more than 19 drops of blood to flow "somewhere."

While police questioned members of the household and relatives, the victim's husband, Earle Wynekoop, to whom she was married after meeting him at a society ball in Indianapolis four years ago, was preparing to leave Kansas City by airplane. An aviator himself, he planned to reach here early tomorrow and undergo questioning with his mother, his sister, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, and others.

An unsubstantiated report stated that a witness would appear soon to tell police that Earle was in Chicago Tuesday and for several days preceding although members of the household said he never came home wife during that time. Earle is one of the few members of the Wynekoop family who is not a physician. He worked on the sky ride at the World's Fair until the exposition closed.

F. D. R. 'Greatest Man I Ever Met,' Says Eddie Cantor, on Visit Here

Franklin D. Roosevelt is the greatest man I ever saw or talked with, according to the well considered verdict reached by the little pop-eyed comedian who was in Atlanta Wednesday night after a visit with the president at the "Little White House" at Warm Springs.

He has the greatest personality of any man I ever saw or talked with," said Eddie. "I am for him 100 per cent and whatever else you can figure. But I expect that's no news. For who isn't?"

Cantor spent a few hours in Atlanta Wednesday night, with J. M. Beeber, of 864 Parkway Drive, an old friend. He left for New York before midnight.

Eddie said he was expecting to remain in New York for the next two or three months, filling his radio contracts as his chief occupation. After which he expected to go to Florida. "I didn't talk at all with the president about the motion picture code," he started for the door, the station and the train for New York, "that 'Roman Scandals,' my new picture, is the most unusual screen production yet. I saw it played before a big audience before coming east and the audience received it splendidly."

FISHER INDORSES ROOSEVELT POLICY ON DEVALUATION

same has been experienced wherever the same principles have been applied. It only takes a little thought to see that the number of dollars of gold in the country can be increased to any desired extent by reducing the gold content without adding to the gold stock.

Rubber Dollar Blamed. Declaring that the depression was due "to the fact that our dollar has been rubber in purchasing power," Professor Fisher said that persons who know this "will not hesitate to choose a dollar which is rubber in weight. If those who want the old fixed weight dollar were to have their way, we would have another devastating depression like this. With a dollar fixed in purchasing power and rubber in weight, such depressions will be a thing of the past."

Concluding that the president's monetary policy is right, Professor Fisher said he cared little as to the specific means.

"I can understand that bankers care much," he said. "They want the government to keep out and leave the whole field to them with all the profits, too. Self interest, resentment and lack of understanding of the price level and its relation to money and banking have set them in general against the president. The days of Andrew Jackson are back again."

Rap "Propagandists." Senator Thomas, in his address, said: "Propaganda is now being broadcast by a small group, suggesting to those not familiar with the intricacies of our money system, that any effort to cheapen the dollar will result in 'greenbacks' or 'printing press money' and that the United States is threatened with a repetition of the German and Russian systems of inflation."

"Let me assure you positively that there is absolutely no justification for such insipid propaganda. 'The value of money depends upon the law of supply and demand,' hence, the purchasing power of the dollar in the main depends upon the quantity of real dollars—gold, silver and current notes—in circulation. 'That the same economic law that controls the price or value of commodities such as wheat, corn and cotton, also controls the value or the purchasing power of money.'"

the large hall of the Atlanta Athletic Club, where a huge scoreboard received the totals reported by the various divisions of the campaign. The spirit of the evening was enthusiastic and the workers, who had a substantial approach to the goal of the campaign already recorded, looked their happy feelings in community singing and "yell" contests.

Features of the financial reports included the news that every Girl Scout troop in the city has pledged a contribution, and that the Atlanta Kennel Club had sent in $10 from "Man's Best Friend." Mrs. Maude Lay Elton, winner of one of the $250 prizes in the Constitution's Marie Dresser poetry contest, turned over her prize money to the Chest fund, it was reported. Arrangements were made for a Chest representative to attend a meeting today of men on a work relief project, these formerly unemployed men having expressed their great desire to "do our bit."

Numbers of reports were received that firms, unable to contribute cash, have donated bread, milk, drugs and other supplies as their share of the Chest. Many stories of meritorious work by campaigners were related as the teams reported.

The clean-up campaign will begin as soon as the auditors finish the work of checking the cards of prospects, and it is expected that many of the workers during the campaign will remain with the cause long enough to finish up prospect cards they were unable to get final reports on during the drive, it was said.

Among the firms reported Wednesday night as 100 per cent subscribers to the Chest are: American Stove Company, Duco Company, Knight Ice Company, Gulf Insurance Company, Max Goldberg Company, Smith Building Company, Brooks-Shatterly The Company, Denny Marmion Company, Miller, Bryant, Pierce Company, George M. Kohl Inc., and Health Products Company.

Proposed New Atlanta Jail

Architect's drawing showing the proposed new cell blocks of the new $346,000 police station for which the federal government, through the public works administration, authorized a loan Wednesday. The blocks will house 430 prisoners and will face Butler street, joining the present old station, on Decatur, which will be remodeled, in an "L." The property at Decatur and Butler streets is not owned by the city and if the present site is used and no additional land is acquired, the structure should be built in accordance with the above sketch, according to Burge & Stevens, architects.

RIDING THE CIRCUIT BY THE METHODIST CONFERENCE

By Thos. M. Elliott

No Conversions for Nine. Reports submitted a year ago by pastors themselves show that nine charges in the North Georgia conference territory did not have a single addition to the church during the year on profession of faith. The combined church membership of the nine charges was reported as being 3,458. That is to say, 3,458 Georgia Methodists, led by nine pastors, did not in 12 months' time bring one new convert into the folds of Christian belief as represented by Southern Methodism.

Pay Short for 149. Records of a year ago show that 149 pastors in the North Georgia conference failed in 1931 to get their promised salaries paid in full. The shortages ran in amounts anywhere from a few dollars to nearly a thousand. There is a reason for the shortages, and the chief one is not the depression. Unwillingness to make any sacrifice, degeneracy of the spirit of loyalty, failure to recognize worth of church, disregard of stewardship duty, lack of regular systematic effort on part of stewards, are a few of the features that enter into the explanation of the failure to pay pastors in full.

600 Beds for Preachers. One feature of the entertainment Atlanta is providing for the visiting Methodist preachers is an order for 600 beds by one hotel where many of them are staying. Some of the brethren went to know what good a new bed would do to a fellow when his roommate snored like an airplane taking off. This snoring business is getting to be something of a problem and is being introduced some kind of legislation asking that all men who snore shall be placed on top of Stone Mountain, where they may snore to their heart's content.

Conference Holds a Record. Uncle Jabesh Gilead says he has been studying the matter some time and finds that this conference does not hold all the records. Some other conferences are just as large, have just as good preachers, just as much money. But Uncle Jabesh says this conference holds one record, and is not even approached by any other in this respect. He says he finds that this conference has more men who are being sued than any one conference in the history of man since Noah. He says there are more men being sued there than there are afraid to get a long breath.

Boosts Advertising. Honorable Louis L. Morris, lay leader of the Athens-Ellbert district and editor of the Hartwell Sun, is a firm believer in the wisdom of advertising. He tells this story to illustrate his point: "An Oklahoma girl advertised for a husband, and landed one within a short time. The advertisement cost $3. She paid the wedding expenses $30 in less than a year the husband died, and left his widow an $11,000 life insurance policy."

Jabesh Gilead "Flabbergasted." Wiping perspiration from his forehead Wednesday morning, Jabesh Gilead, the delegate-at-large, representing the local district, cried out, "Well, I'm just plumperly flabbergasted. O tempora! O mores!" With a sympathetic ear we made inquiry as to the old gentleman's lament. "Once was young, but now I am old. I have been through many experiences and observed trying situations. Now, I bemoan the day when I see men employing the methods of ward heisters in slum districts, trying to get this man or that man elected a delegate to the general conference. Why, son, some of these fellows are so active in their campaigning they are in danger of being killed, for they pay no attention to the red and green lights at street crossings. Son, could you think of Habersham J. Adams electing to be sent to the general conference? Or Simon Peter Richardson? Or W. F. Robinson? Look on the scene now. Woe is me." Thus Uncle Jabesh bemoaned the sad situation.

Helpful Methodist Laymen. The recent death of Honorable George M. Napier, for many years actively identified with the conference Sunday School board, directs attention to the fact that the many eminent Methodist laymen who each year attend the sessions and make large contributions toward the work of Methodism. Among those in mind just at this time are Judge John S. Candler, Judge John B. Hutcheson, Major R. J. Guinn, Dr. N. G. Slaughter, Colonel Sam Tate, Miller S. Bell, John A. Manser, J. B. Devereaux, Madison Maupin, John N. Holder, Judge W. B. Hollingsworth, Dr. Harvey W. Cox, and scores of others throughout the state.

Don't You Detest 'Em? We are indebted to an Uncle Ralph McGill of Ten-O-Ses, for the idea of this paragraph, and we make due apologies. We take his idea of "don't you detest 'em?" and apply it. Don't you detest a preacher who is conceited? Don't you detest a parson who thinks he is pretty? Don't you detest one who declares the conference has never recognized his real worth? Don't you detest a presiding elder who uses his position to try to get even? Don't you detest a preacher who boot-licks? Don't you detest a preacher who takes up $22.15 worth of the conference time telling about how much more progress his church with the church trustees will be asked. Mrs. N. Good, district secretary for the women's work, says there are 44 auxiliary societies for women's work, with a membership of 4,022; and 58 children's societies, with a membership of 2,573. Membership in both sections shows a net increase for the year. The district work for the women during the year paid to the conference treasurer $20,577, and also gave to the city mission board the sum of $3,941. The women expended a large amount in other local work, making repairs on parsonages and other church property. Boxes of supplies valued at $3,340 were sent off.

Medical Care Obtained. Under the social relations department of Christian work the women gave assistance in obtaining dental and medical care for a number of children and working girls. A circulating library was established, and several boys were sent to summer camps. Blood transfusions were secured for a number of negro patients, and 14 auxiliaries assumed the support of a student at Paine College summer school.

The NRA campaign was supported by the women, who took an active part in obtaining pledges for its support and other church property. Judge John S. Candler, chairman of the conference board of Christian education, stated Wednesday night that his board will today recommend to the conference that a special committee be named to study the question of Methodist school mergers for a year and make report at the next annual session.

Judge Candler also stated that the board had reorganized its office force, cutting expenses about 50 per cent, and will make that report to the conference. The reappointment of Rev. J. B. Tate as religious worker at the Fort Worth Texas, and reductions in appropriations to schools and colleges will be asked, it was reported.

Applicants Examined. Examining committees met with undergraduates during the day, and the committee on admissions and applicants had before them the young ministers who are asking admission on trial, as recommended by their various district conferences. A class of some 10 or 12 applicants are asking for admission.

Further work on arranging the pastors' appointments was done by Bishop Moore and the cabinet of presiding elders, with final announcement of the appointments set for late Sunday evening. It was stated Wednesday that some seven ministers will retire from active ministerial work this week, and enter the superannuate relation. Three men are to leave this conference by transfer to other conferences, Rev. M. B. Hedlin, Rev. A. C. Prickett and Dr. S. H. C. Burgin. Three transfers to this conference have been announced, Dr. J. W. Johnson, Fort Worth Texas; Rev. T. H. Williams, from South Georgia, and Rev. Walt Holcomb, from the Florida conference.

Balloting Begins Today. Bishop John M. Moore, president of the North Georgia Methodist conference, announced Wednesday night his purpose to have the balloting for general conference delegates to begin today immediately after roll call. He hoped to have two ballots cast before the noon hour. He also stated his purpose to continue the balloting at all sessions until the required number shall be named.

Before the first ballot is to be cast, the following 12 young ministers will be admitted into full connection today, so that they may vote in the elections: Revs. L. J. Cox, W. R. Sisson, T. A. Oliver, B. C. Owen, Y. A. Bailey, J. W. Hedlin, J. W. Nichols, C. A. McGrady, G. O. King, C. M. Spivey, G. H. C. Stone and C. H. Sewell.

Laurel was provoked when Dr. R. J. Russell, representing Rev. Y. A. Oliver, said, "The young man is not married now, but he will be before this time next week in the city. Interest in general conference matters was intensified when Bishop Moore announced his purpose to name a committee of 12 persons to hear all proposed requests for general conference legislation and make recommendations to the conference. When informed that several conference members are ill at hospitals in the city, he stated that their votes would not be counted as legal.

Organization Perfected. Conference organization was perfected when Rev. George W. Barrett, of Rockmart, was named secretary for the tenth time. Assistants were

Lee Tracy Is 'Fired' By Picture Company

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22.—(P)—Lee Tracy, film actor, was discharged from the employ of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Motion Picture Company tonight by Louis B. Mayer, studio executive, who described Tracy's behavior in Mexico City as "deplorable."

Announcement of Tracy's dismissal was contained in a telegram which Mayer sent to Abelardo Rodriguez, president of Mexico. It said the actor's five-year contract had been canceled "as a result of Tracy's deplorable behavior."

"Not only has he been removed from the film 'Viva Villa,'" the telegram continued, "but he has been dismissed entirely from our employ, and his contract canceled." Tracy was scheduled to leave El Paso, Texas, tonight for Los Angeles, where he is expected tomorrow night. He eluded Mexican border guards in reaching El Paso. They sought to arrest him on charges of making offensive gestures and remarks when he stood on a balcony of a Mexico City hotel and watched parading cadets march by.

Prior to Mayer's telegram, studio officials had denied Tracy would be dismissed, suspended or reprimanded. He had served less than two years of his five-year contract.

LOAN OF $346,000 FOR NEW CITY JAIL APPROVED BY PWA

1, 1937, $60,000; July 1, 1938, $16,640. Total, $265,000.

The government added another $30 per cent as a gift, thus pushing the total expenditure on the project to $346,000.

Many Improvements Included. Space for drill hall, a gymnasium, the identification bureau, custodian, receiving room, a rifle range, a 30-car garage and other facilities to modernize the present structure will be included in the new building.

Key Wednesday suggested that a special committee from the finance committee supervise construction on the building in order to hasten plans, and start of work.

Constitutional limitations heretofore have balked efforts of the city to incur a debt and funds distributed by the federal government to provide jobs in prosecution of public projects have been withheld from the city.

Hugh Howell, Atlanta lawyer, who has been handling negotiations for the $1,500,000 state prison in Fannin county, which is to be constructed by the federal government and rented by the state until the rents have paid the cost of construction and then turned over to the state, said Wednesday that he understood that the contract for the prison was drawn up and would arrive here in a day or two for the signature of Governor Talmadge.

"I am informed in Washington that everything is all set and that work on the prison will start in a couple of weeks," Mr. Howell said. "The contract is expected here in a day or two for signing."

named as follows: Revs. M. M. Maxwell, W. E. Pruitt, William Greenway, W. M. Twigg, H. L. Byrd, E. F. Dempsey and J. C. Callaway.

Rev. Z. C. Hayes Jr. was named statistical secretary, with the following assistants: Revs. W. B. Mills, L. L. Gurley, B. C. Kerr, C. A. Reese, A. A. Phillips, H. A. McNeill, S. A. Daily, G. T. Shell, J. L. Varner, L. J. Cox, W. R. Sisson, B. W. Kilpatrick, G. H. C. Stone, M. Brackman, Walker Chidsey, G. M. Spivey, L. L. Smith, W. M. Driggers, R. C. Singleton and Harold Williams.

Bishop Moore announced that, at his special request, Bishop Warren A. Candler, senior bishop of the Southern Methodist church, will deliver a special address to the conference at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Bishop Candler joined this conference 58 years ago. According to law enacted by the general conference four years ago, he will retire at the 1934 session of that body.

In his opening address to the annual conference body Wednesday night, Bishop Moore bemoaned the lowering of social and spiritual life and the loss of morale during the past decade. He appealed for the unifying of religious forces, so that the church might have a directing power upon the thought and life of the nation, and of course, the regulation style.

COTTONSEED CODE HEARING DATE SET

Trade Accord To Be Acted On Before Crushers on November 27.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—A minimum wage of 22.5 cents an hour and a maximum 48-hour work week except in emergencies were provided in a code of fair competition and marketing agreement proposed for the cottonseed crushing industry.

A public hearing on the code will be held November 27 before the NRA and the farm administration.

The National Cottonseed Products Association, Inc., presented the code, which would guarantee the right of collective bargaining.

In place of the 12-hour shift now in general use in the industry, the code proposes an 8-hour shift, with a limit of 48 hours for each employee per week except in cases of such emergencies as fire, railroad embargoes and hot or damp seed.

Accounting System. Mills would agree to adopt a uniform accounting system. The price paid for cottonseed would be furnished the administrator for publication, for the information of all interested persons and to prevent discrimination. The mills would be required to publish prices received for cottonseed cake, meals and hulls.

Cottonseed would be purchased by all mills under uniform contracts to be prepared and distributed by the administrator, and each contract would be for a specified tonnage at a specified price.

A national administrative committee would be created, composed of the president and vice president of the association and one representative from each of 11 districts, each mill in a district having one vote.

The districts: North Carolina; South Carolina; Georgia; Alabama; Mississippi; the valley (Arkansas, Tennessee, Missouri and Illinois); Louisiana; Oklahoma; north Texas; south Texas; and New Mexico, Arizona and California.

Choice of Administrator. This administrative committee, at the suggestion and with the approval of the secretary of agriculture, would name an administrator, his salary and other expenses of administering the code would be paid by an annual levy of one and one-half cents a ton of cottonseed crushed, to be paid by the mills.

A regional committee would be elected by the mills in each of the 11 states or regions to assist the administrator in carrying out provisions of the code.

Minimum wage and maximum hour provisions of the code would not apply to superintendents, managers, cashiers, executives, officials, salesmen, seed buyers or others paid on a fixed monthly or yearly salary.

The marketing agreement defines an unfair competition, the purchasing of seed "in any section at a price that will tend to eliminate, oppress or discriminate against other mills situated therein," and the payment to commissions, rebates, bonuses "or subsidies of any kind" to sellers.

This latter practice was "declared to be an unfair method of competition and commercial bribery."

Roosevelt and Morgenthau To Push Gold Revaluation

President Calls Nation to War Against "Intolerant Foes" in Air Talk to Maryland.

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON.
WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called the nation tonight to war against those

"obstinate, powerful and intolerant of the things we fight for today." Speaking over the air in participating in the Maryland tercentenary celebration, the president made no reference to current issues, nor to the critics of his gold program, as he stated:

"May we in our own fight for things which we know to be right, fight as ably and as successfully as he (Lord Baltimore) did some 300 years ago. For we have our own fight to wage, not against the same foe he beat down, but against other foes just as obstinate and just as powerful and just as intolerant of things we fight for today."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke into microphones in a sheltered room of the new Georgia Hall after an introduction by Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, from his native state.

He lauded the spirit of the founders of America and asked that it be "matched" today. He noted the religious freedom clause of the Maryland charter. "It is a good thing," he said, "to demand liberty for ourselves and for those who agree with us, but it is a better thing and a rarer thing to give liberty to others who do not agree with us."

To Meet Morgenthau. While his chief lieutenants fired back today to criticism of his gold monetary program, the president continued silent and arranged for a talk later in the week with Acting Secretary Morgenthau to push ahead the dollar revaluation plans.

There were some to read into the fighting words of the president a reference to the attack on his monetary program, but he made no direct declaration today to this issue.

Mr. Morgenthau is coming here Friday.

day or Saturday, for a conference on what was described today at the "Little White House" as "things in general" and nothing specific.

Ignoring the public attack on his monetary plan by the resigning O. M. W. Sprague, former special adviser to the treasury, Mr. Roosevelt appears to be going straight ahead.

Meanwhile, William H. Woodin, secretary of the treasury on leave of absence, joined Morgenthau in replying to the criticisms of Sprague, a former adviser to the Bank of England.

With Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, joined in support of Sprague's condemnation of the administration monetary policy there is sign of a public threatening out of the issue. Mr. Roosevelt will speak here Friday night at the dedication of the new Georgia Hall on the Warm Springs foundation, but he has given no hint going beyond his words of last Saturday when he termed his monetary critics "modern Tories" and "doubting Thomases."

Motors With Cantor. The president broke his vacation hours today for the regular semi-weekly conference with newspapermen. He motored down the mountain trail to the Merriweather inn and swapped a few stories with Eddie Cantor; the actor, whom he took for a drive together with his son, Franklin Jr., who came here to recuperate from an attack of influenza.

Tomorrow or Friday, General Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, comes in to report and also to bring some new codes for approval, including in all probability the motion picture and newspaper agreements.

From time to time throughout the remaining 10 days here the president expects calls also from others of his recovery lieutenants, including Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, and Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator.

There is also a probability that William C. Bullitt, newly appointed ambassador to Russia, will come down for a talk before assuming his new duties.

Liquor Control Plans. The Morgenthau visit will also afford opportunity for the president to check up on the plans for federal liquor supervision after repeal which becomes effective early next month.

It was made known today that Mr. Roosevelt is supporting the position of Acting Secretary Morgenthau in requiring that all treasury news be given out through his office. He regards this as in effect for other departments and he does not consider it a censorship but rather in the interest of accuracy. In this connection he has insisted, too, in all government statistical data coming out through a central agent—the interpreting economist—in what was described as an effort to provide accuracy.

of the Harvey-Messing Advertising Agency, at the Atlanta Advertising Club meeting today at the Ansley Park hotel at 12:30 o'clock.

The passage of this proposed bill of the Henry Ford still were without verification today. It was stated at the "Little White House" that nothing is known by the president of a visit by the automobile manufacturer.

A meeting of farmers of Merriweather, Pike and Upson counties forwarded to the president today a resolution endorsing his leadership. The resolution of the meeting, prepared over by Frank C. Wood, read: "Resolved that this meeting, composed of farmers of Merriweather, Pike and Upson counties, assembled for the purpose of taking action relative to forming farm production credit associations, hereby express its appreciation and indorsement of the policies of our peerless President Franklin D. Roosevelt in behalf of agriculture and his interest of the forgotten man."

Deaths of Lumber Men Laid to Amoebic Dysentery

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The deaths of five lumber executives in widely scattered cities of the United States and Canada were laid today by the Journal of the American Medical Association to amoebic dysentery after they attended a meeting in Chicago last summer.

The victims were listed as W. B. 43, president of a Boston lumber company; A. M., 64, president of a Toronto lumber company; M. E. L., 67, president of a Seattle lumber company; A. C. L., Jr., sales manager of a Louisiana lumber company, and R. L. K., executive of a Louisiana lumber firm.

In all 15 deaths, including that of Texas Guinan, night club performer, have been attributed to the disease.

by congress at the January session will mean the elimination of 80 to 90 per cent of current advertising, according to reports, that is now being done by food, drug and cosmetic manufacturers. Charlton Keen, the advertising club's president, said.

Under the provisions of this bill no advertiser in the above fields will feel free to make the simplest statements in regard to his product. Everyone interested in better advertising and sane regulation of advertising is urged to attend this meeting as Mr. Harvey is thoroughly familiar with the proposed bill and its possible effects both on the public and advertising craftsmen and media.

The members of the club will also have the pleasure of hearing "Harmonica Mike," the wandering radio minstrel, who will entertain the club during luncheon.

SETTLE PREDICTS BALLOON ASCENTS TO 15-MILE MARK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A prediction that man in the future will be able to penetrate as much as 15 miles into the atmosphere even with the present knowledge of ballooning was made today by Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle, who, with Major Chester L. Fordney, has ascended higher than any other American.

Settle called at the navy department to tell the story of his trip into the upper reaches to Secretary Swanson, and expressed himself as fully ready "to try it again."

In fact the commander said he would prefer that his next flight be made in a larger balloon in order that a higher altitude could be attained.

Even with the present state of the art of building balloons it would be possible to construct one several times the size of that in which the present flight was made," Settle told newspapermen.

KANSAS HOUSE BEATS BILL TO LEGALIZE 3.2

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 22.—(AP)—A bill to legalize 3.2 beer in Kansas was rejected by the state house of representatives today by a vote of 63 to 38.

This reversed its action in committee of the house yesterday.

There was no clear-cut wet and dry vote on the measure.

Several of those voting against the measure expressed opposition to legalizing 3.2 beer which they asserted, was intoxicating, while others voting against it declared legalization of 3.2 beer was a useless move, as stronger beer would be available now that national prohibition has been repealed.

60,000 JOBLESS GO ON CWA ROLLS

First Pay Day Comes Saturday; Wholesale Transfer Follows Conference.

Georgia's 60,000 jobless, who have been on federal emergency relief rolls, Wednesday became employees of the newly launched civil works administration and will have their first pay day Saturday. To these are added nearly 20,000 placed on the CWA pay roll who have not previously been on relief.

Ronald Ransom, chairman of the Georgia relief commission and the Georgia civil works administration, announced the formal transfer of the 60,000 after an all-day conference at the capitol, asserting that those on the relief rolls had been removed en masse to the CWA rolls and that the relief projects on which they had been serving were designated as CWA projects to be continued as such until further projects are approved.

"Those on what formerly were relief projects will be kept at work on these until other projects are ready for them," Mr. Ransom said. "We are shaping up these projects as speedily as possible and in a few days there will be no more work relief projects in the state."

The chairman said that for the present the CWA job quotas of Georgia's 130 counties would be the same as the number of each county's relief rolls, adding that the county committees would be notified immediately of any increase in the number of these numbers. Mr. Ransom said that at this time the funds at the disposal of the commission would not permit any increase in the payroll but that the commission was hopeful that needed money would be allocated in a few days and more names would be added to the rolls. The chairman, however, stressed the fact that relief cases will be given preference in the dispensing of jobs of the civil works administration.

The county commission Wednesday continued its work on proposed CWA projects, going over about 19 which have been worked out in detail, all of these being for public jobs. It is expected that about 100 more projects will be ready for submission today or Friday.

The commission heard a delegation from Ben Hill, which asked when the proposed new bridge on Bankhead highway is constructed, the old bridge now in use be transferred to the site of the present Austell bridge.

E. W. Roberts, of Atlanta, was added to the list of engineers now assisting the commission in gathering data for the various projects to be submitted under the civil works program.

UNIFORM CREDIT IDEA WILL BE PRESENTED

A suggested uniform credit system for Atlanta will be discussed by representatives of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association with the members of the Atlanta Retail Credit Association at the latter's dinner meeting tonight at the Henry Grady hotel at 6 o'clock.

The time of the meeting was advanced from 6:30 o'clock, the time originally set, so that the merchants may get away in time to hear General Hugh S. Johnson's address. The meeting will adjourn at 7:45 o'clock. Invitations have been issued to prominent Atlanta mercantile leaders to be present, as adoption of the proposed code which incorporated a uniform credit plan for Atlanta retail merchants will have considerable effect on the present business routine of their establishments, it was stated by L. S. Gilbert, secretary of the Atlanta Retail Credit Association.

Mr. Gilbert explained that a suggested code had been submitted by the National Credit Association, but because of local conditions, it was not deemed advisable to adopt any prescribed code in its entirety throughout the entire nation.

Meeting To Be Held On Hog, Corn Slash

The last of five regional conferences on the federal government plan to aid corn and hog farmers by making $250,000,000 available to those who join in a program to decrease production will be held here today and Friday. Lester A. Schlup, of the extension division of the agriculture adjustment administration, announced Wednesday. The conference will be attended by commissioners of agriculture, extension directors and other officials of Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Louisiana, Florida and South Carolina.

FORMER SLAVES TO BE ENTERTAINED AT ANNUAL PARTY

Preparations were being made Wednesday for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Ex-Slave Association, which is composed of the citizens of Atlanta of both races. The exercises will be held just before the Christmas holidays at the headquarters of the association at Hilliard and Currier streets.

The program will be featured by the annual sermon delivered by one of the ministers of the city. Experiences will be given by the ex-slaves, whose ages range from 85 to 110 years.

The association will follow its annual custom of giving Christmas presents to the former slaves of Atlanta and Fulton county, who are unable to work and have no relatives or friends to help support them.

Gooch, in charge of presentation of evidence for the commission, said he had digested a number of exhibits furnished by the commission by the power company and also had studied the testimony of Professor Henry Riggs of Ann Arbor, who gave the testimony at his home last week, being unable to come to Atlanta because of illness.

Distinguished Makers of Georgia History Are Paid Tribute At Colorful Tree-Planting Rites in Bicentennial Forest

Principals in the planting of the tree for President Franklin D. Roosevelt are shown in the picture at the top, with dozens of children representing the 43 elementary schools participating in the exercises in the background. From left to right in the foreground are seen Miss Lula Kingsberry, principal of English Avenue school, who spoke on "The Honor Forest and What It Means"; Kendall Weisiger, Atlanta civic and educational worker; Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta public schools and vice president of the Georgia bicentennial commission; Kathleen Jones, of Smilite school, who placed the box of good wishes to the president; Y. G. Allen, of Grant Park, and Milton Wallace, of Forrest Avenue schools, who aided in the official planting; Miss Hattie Rainwater, supervisor of elementary science of the elementary schools of Atlanta; Dr. Albert B. Rogers, executive secretary of the bicentennial commission. Planting of the Roosevelt tree also is shown in the picture at the bottom.

In appreciation for the achievements of the living and the glorious contribution of Georgia's illustrious dead, Atlanta school children Wednesday planted memorials in the form of trees to the great and near great at the Georgia bicentennial forest.

Roosevelt, Pleasant A. Stovall, Savannah editor and president of the Georgia bicentennial commission; Willis A. Sutton, vice president of the commission and superintendent of Atlanta public schools; Dr. Albert B. Rogers, executive secretary and director of the bicentennial movement; Clark

Howell, editor of The Constitution, and Miss Hattie Rainwater, superintendent of elementary science of the Atlanta public schools, who has worked tirelessly for the memorial park, were the living who were honored. Included among the dead were James Edward Oglethorpe and 70 other builders of the state. The list of illustrious names includes writers, statesmen, editors, educators, scientists and ministers.

Wednesday was a red-letter day in the lives of more than 300 children representing the 43 elementary schools of Atlanta as they paid their youthful tributes of love, esteem and devotion to the heroes of yesteryear and to those who have contributed to memorializing the 200th anniversary of the founding of the Empire state.

The Georgia memorial forest adjoins Peachtree Battle park at the Bobby Jones golf course. It is located on some of the most historical ground in the state, and was the scene of some of the most bitter engagements in the Battle of Atlanta as Sherman swung through the state on his historic march to Savannah during the War Between the States. It is beautiful land, and has been made more beautiful through landscaping efforts of the city parks department under George I. Simons and the city planning commission, of which Raymond W. Torras is engineer-secretary.

In the near future an attractive lake will be formed in a portion of the tract. Many of the trees to the state's heroes will be on little islands in the lake. But to President and Mrs. Roosevelt go the honor of having trees planted for them standing on either side of the main bridge leading to the island group.

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

By H. A. CARTER

NEW OR LITTLE KNOWN.

When rain is slashing across the landscape and the herpetological cycle is held in temporary abeyance by the all-powerful weather, I get the greatest pleasure out of my library. The papers accumulate all summer, drifting in from this author and that museum, bearing impressive titles indicative of the early-year activities of the respective writers. There isn't any set time for the appearance of papers bearing the few cryptic words that stir the herpetological heart, such as "A New Genus of Lizards from Haiti."

"New Species of Geomys from Panama." The magic of the word "new"! Here is an animal whose very existence has been heretofore unsuspected or unknown. New to science, as the press states it; properly, it is true, but without imagination. "New to science" is redundant, in fact, even if rhetorically correct. Who but a scientist cares if Lepidactylus delicatus is a new species or not? Does it matter to the tailor, if the Emydid turtles differ markedly—and specifically—in Costa Rica and Panama? No, for it has no bearing on the price of English tweeds.

It may seem to some of you that since I am working in Georgia I should have little time to consider the tropical species. The facts of distribution of animals make the occurrence of certain species in various parts of importance in explaining the habits of our own native animals. While exact parallels do not obtain in distribution, the entire group of species must be considered rather than the isolated Georgia varieties.

So the papers that tell of new discoveries are of great value. Pioneers and explorers are gradually pushing back the wilderness to divulge its secrets to the prying scientist. The wilderness at length will claim its own again.

A few new specimens are added to museum cabinets. Measurements are noted, reports written, species named. Piles of notes and manuscripts accumulate in museum libraries. The numbers of species increase into hundreds of thousands, waiting and waiting. For what? For the mind that can take firm hold of the minutiae of details of faunas, work them over, and emerge with a concept that will be of benefit to all of mankind. A Wallace, a Spencer, a Darwin, may even now be formulating a significant theory in the dim ranges of some museum.

The thrill of the word "new"! It is progress in the abstract.

"So That's Where the Doctor Comes From!"

Babies may not understand, but mothers know the priceless feeling of security the telephone brings. And priceless it may sometimes be to hear the reassuring voice of the doctor saying "I'll be right over."

But emergencies are unusual—and the telephone has another important job in the home, smoothing off the rough corners of everyday existence. It runs errands—saves time, trips and waste of energy.

For your leisure hours, it forms a quick contact with friends to arrange a spur-of-the-moment trip to the movies, or an informal evening of bridge. When your friends want to reach you, why—you are as near as your telephone.

Your own experience tells you in how many ways the telephone can serve you well, and at a cost so small that it really doesn't pay to try to do without it. If you do not have a telephone, ask about the service at the telephone Business Office.

MAN'S CASTLE

By Lawrence Hazard

INSTALLMENT I.

Central park, the melting pot of New York's heterogeneous population, where rich and poor, high and low mingle and rub shoulders. There sat Bill, a burly young man in his late twenties, a typical Van Bibber in his evening clothes. He was built like a football player and to all appearances, he was a scion of wealth as he fed popcorn to the pigeons. It was a midsummer evening, and near him on the same park bench sat a neatly but shabbily dressed girl of nothing but skin and bones. She acted strangely and he watched her. There was a desperate, almost hysterical look in her eyes, a pinched appearance about her mouth.

Suddenly the girl became aware of the man's scrutiny and she sat stiffly, taking her eyes off the pigeons. "What's the matter?" Bill inquired. "The girl paid no attention to his query."

Bill spoke in a voice and manner that was in striking contrast to his fashionable get-up. "Come on—spill it." He edged closer to the girl. "I've been watching you ever since you sat down here an you look like you were rehearsing something. What is it?"

The terrified girl arose and was about to start away when he got up and barred her progress.

"Please—" the girl pleaded in a low tone.

"What's the rush?" Bill inquired pleasantly.

"Lemme go, or I'll—I'll—"

"You'll what?"

She looked at him a moment in silence, and then blurted out, almost hysterically, "I'll get down on my knees for some of that popcorn."

Bill regarded her closely. "What's this? I thought I knew all the past-handlin' routines. Or are you the little girl reporter workin' on a sob story? If you are, I can tip you off to some swell stuff about these pigeons. Take that one there, I always call him Oliver Twist. He's always askin' for more. And that one there—wait a minute!" The girl had started away, but he grabbed her arm. "Are you really hungry?"

"I ain't eaten in two days!"

"Two days? Why not?"

The girl was blither. "I haven't any money. It must be great to be a pigeon. There's always someone throwing them crumbs."

"If you had the brains of a pigeon, you wouldn't go hungry."

"You've wove'd up in the girl's eyes and her lips twitched. She was on the verge of hysteria. Bill flipped his cigarette into the bushes, and took her by the arm. "Come on, let's eat," he said.

They strolled to the Casino where Bill let her order all she desired, which was triple what he put away for politeness. They sat in silence. After the girl had finished, Bill remarked, "For a pint size like you, you can certainly put it away. You're hungry, all right. But if you think I fell for your line of hokey, you're crazy. No female ever has to starve in a town like this."

"Why not?" she inquired.

"Because she's a female."

The girl paused, then spoke slowly. "Were you ever out of work for a whole year?"

"I've been out of work all my life. And, anyway, the unemployment problem's got nothing to do with women. Did you ever think of that?"

"Well," she thought of it.

"I couldn't."

"I suppose the river's better than that," Bill sneered.

"I thought of that, too. I was down there this afternoon. But I was afraid."

"How are you ever going to get anywhere if you're afraid of everything?"

"I guess I just won't get anywhere. You noticed his untasted food. 'You're not eatin'.'"

"I ain't hungry."

"Have you ever been hungry?"

"Nobody ever has to be hungry anywhere," he declared.

The girl looked at him wisely as she noted his fashionable attire. "Oh, it's all right for you to say that—you're rich."

Bill looked up suddenly and snapped his fingers. A waiter came over and the diner asked for the manager, who approached shortly. Bill took his opera hat and came from the chair, puffed calmly on his cigar and invited the manager to be seated before he commenced to speak.

"There are supposed to be 12,000,000 people in this country without work," Bill declared. "A lot of them are starving, the man continued. 'Now take this young lady for instance. Up to an hour ago she hadn't eaten for two days. She was starving. So I brought her in here and fixed her up. She feels swell now. Says it's the best food she ever ate.'"

The manager was bewildered. "I'm glad to hear that."

"The only trouble is she ain't got a cent," he paused and blew a ring of smoke. "An' neither have I. So the feed' on you, brother. Now, there's a lot of ways of handlin' a case like this. You can call a cop an' have the pair of us sent to the island where we're fed by the state for 30 days, at least. The more vags the state has to feed, the more 'taxes you people have to pay. This is one of the joints that throws out enough left-over grub in a week to feed a thousand people. So you can afford one on the house once in a while. Bill raised his voice as the manager became outraged. "Am I right or wrong? Tell you what I'll do. I'll put it up to your own customer here—let 'em decide whether it's right for you to let somebody die of hunger right outside your dump. If they say I'm wrong, I'll admit it. He picked up a spoon and rapped on his tumbler sharply. "Get out!" the manager shouted.

Bill bowed politely, took the girl by the arm and made an exit. "Where do you live?" The girl shrugged her shoulders. "I might as well take you home."

"That would be all right if I had a home," she said.

"Where do you figure on spending the night?"

"I don't know."

The man advised her to get a grip and register at a hotel until she was thrown out and to continue the process in other hotels, but the girl was afraid.

"Do you live in hotels that way?" she inquired.

"Nah. I got not use for hotels."

Bill put a finger in his pocket. "Close your eyes," he ordered, and then after a second, he commanded her to open them. The front of his shirt was illuminated with an advertisement. "Two bucks a day for this—and all you've got to do is to walk up and down and flash the light on and off."

"If it is all right with you, I'll walk up and down with you, Bill declared. So they paced up and down until after the theater crowds had departed.

"What's your name?"

"Trina," the girl replied.

"I suppose you've got to have a place to sleep. Come with me."

Bill led the way to Vagil-on-the-Hudson, where the down-and-outers of New York have squatted, erecting their castles out of debris and rubbish. It was a fast growing community, and a surprise to Trina who never believed that such a place existed. But Bill preferred to sleep in the open rather than build himself a shack. He bunked on a decollet barge around in the river. He was going to take Trina to Flossie, who lived alone, but before they reached her shack, they discovered that the woman was in no mood to receive a guest. She was quarreling with Bragg, so Bill walked on to Ira's place. Ira was a down-and-out pros and cons in a shack that Bill had erected. It was more homey than any of the others in the settlement, because Trina was naturally artistic and domestic. She worked all day, washing, ironing, cleaning, and fixing up, which surprised and annoyed the other dwellers of the place who saw no sense in being immaculate, or making a palace of the home.

Flossie called on Trina regularly that is when Flossie was sober, and she was always sober when she lacked the price of gin.

"Where do you get all the energy from? Every time I see you, you're workin'!" Flossie declared.

"I was outta work for a whole year," Trina continued to scrub. Making up for lost time, I guess this kinda work's not real work. It's fun."

"You're the only woman I ever knew who had seven wash days a week."

Bill's particular. Anything that goes next to his skin has got to be clean. I guess he's the cleanest man in the world. One of these days may-be Bill'll get a washin' machine. But that ain't so important just yet—the main thing's a stove."

She looked up proudly. "Bill's goin' to get me a real stove."

"I'd like some man to offer me a stove. I'd tell him where to put it," Flossie declared with a vengeance. "What's the matter with the one you got?"

"You can only stew on it. I could cook Bill some wonderful things if I had a real stove. An' he's gonna get me one, too."

"Who ever heard of a brindlestiff gettin' money enough to buy a stove?" Trina stopped scrubbing and wiped her brow with her sleeve. "What's a brindlestiff?"

"A 'bo with ants in his pants—can't stay put—except maybe in jail."

Trina stopped scrubbing and wiped her brow with her sleeve. "What's a brindlestiff?"

"If he was different would he keep you in a dump like this?"

"What's the matter with you, Flossie? How can you say things like that? This ain't a dump. Not to me, it ain't. It's a sorta—I can't find the word. You know them things they got in the middle of the street—where people can stay till the traffic's safe? Whadya call 'em?"

"Safety zones."

Trina nodded eagerly. "That's it. That's how I feel about the place. It's like sort of a clearing in the forest—quiet an' safe an' peaceful—"

The terrifying mournful shriek of a locomotive whistle cut in upon the scene. Trina shuddered. "That's the only thing I don't like," she said slowly. "Them train whistles—they plague the life outa you, night or day."

ENEMIES OF NRA SCORED BY LABOR

C. of C. Assailed for Resolution Asking Wage Slash in South.

After hearing a nationally known labor leader, Owen D. Gorman, condemn the "organized propaganda intended to defeat the NRA program," delegates attending the regular meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Trades at the Labor Temple Wednesday night unanimously passed a resolution assailing the action of a recent session of the southeastern division of the United States Chamber of Commerce in "asking for a 30 per cent lower minimum wage scale in the south than that of other sections of the country."

The resolution charged that "such a request for a lowered standard of living was an insult to the people of the south, a danger to the people and a gross attempt to secure unfair competition with other business in other sections of the country."

Gorman, who said he campaigned for President Roosevelt west of the Mississippi last year, charged that the "fight against the president's monetary system is nothing less than an attempt to nullify Section 7 of the blanket agreement and other sections of the NRA codes."

"Organized Propaganda," he said, "and an effort made by the very people who should seek to carry out the provisions and success of the NRA. The minimum wage scales as set out are not enough for labor and I ask you to do everything in your power to see that workers receive more than the minimum set. The best manner in which to accomplish this is to organize fully."

Following Gorman's talk, several delegates reported that this section "is more compactly organized now than at any time in history." The Labor Temple hall was filled to capacity and leaders said they expected to have not less than 100 unions in the trades group within a short time.

A. Steve, National president of the federation, also a member of the Georgia relief commission, said that an order Wednesday removed some 60,000 Georgians from relief rolls and placed them on pay rolls with a minimum wage scale of 40 cents an hour for unskilled labor and $1 an hour for skilled workers. He explained they would work on a 30-hour weekly basis.

Holding out promises of additional relief measures soon to come, Gorman argued against passage of a proposed resolution to establish CCC camps for idle women. He said two experiments along that line had failed and that within a few weeks relief would be arranged for unemployed women.

Miss Mann on Schools. Miss Allie B. Mann, honorary chairman of the education committee, read figures showing that there are 40,000 school teachers in the United States who receive less than $450 a year salary; 100,000 children who are trying to get into schools are unable to do so because of the breakdown in the educational system; that despite the child labor law, 2,228,000 children are still employed, and not in school; 2,000 rural schools have been closed, and one out of every four cities in the country have shortened school terms. Condemning "moral usurers who still thrive despite legislation passed to curb them," J. L. R. Byrd, for many years a crusader against loan sharks and "inhuman money changers," said that despite the garnishment law passed by the legislature that it is being flagrantly violated.

"The very facts you have heard about schools," he said, "and the pitifully low salaries paid and the general trend of depression makes the task of these unscrupulous money lenders and moral usurers easier."

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Formal work of the world disarmament conference was suspended until mid-January today, by a vote of its steering committee, to permit diplomatic negotiations aimed at saving the parley and getting Germany back.

The committee accepted unanimously a statement by Arthur Henderson, British chairman of the conference, that there shall be "parallel and supplementary effort between the various states and the full use of diplomatic machinery conducted energetically to advance in every possible way the work of the conference."

The United States, it was determined, will be kept carefully informed of the negotiations.

End of Nickel Cigar Foreseen by Makers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A plea for the life of the "good five-cent cigar" was made today by manufacturers in answer to protests at a public hearing against wage provisions of a proposed code for the cigar industry. Some manufacturers contended that, should the proposed wages, ranging from 22-1/2 cents to 32 cents an hour minimum, be raised, it would mean the end of the five-cent cigar.

GREAT SMOKY PARK FUNDS NOT PROVIDED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Officials of the office of national parks, buildings and monuments said today that although by an executive order $1,550,000 had been authorized for completion of Great Smoky Mountain National park, that so far the money had not been made available. The executive order was issued prior to August 1, but the project itself still is pending in the legal department. The work will be undertaken, officials of the office said, if and when the money can be obtained.

Roosevelt Receives Two Pouches Daily

Two pouches of mail for President Roosevelt were rushed to the White House from Warm Springs daily, one in the morning and the other in the late afternoon, postal inspectors said Wednesday. The morning pouch comes early and is rushed on an Eastern Air Transport plane to Warm Springs. The other arrives about 5:30 in the afternoon, and is sent in an automobile by special messenger. The pouches usually contain 15 to 25 pounds of mail, including the president's newspapers.

The late mail fits in with the president's well-known custom of reading in bed. Both plane and automobile bring mail from Warm Springs.

Travis Douglas, Atlanta, optician at 56 Peachtree street.

tans. He also produced legitimate plays, but the land of filmdom had captured his chief interest and he later founded the Consolidated Film and Supply Company here, which company he operated for many years. He was forced to retire from active business several years ago when his health began to fail.

The father's abiding interest in films was transmitted to his only son, Oscar S. Oldknow, of Los Angeles, who is now president of the National Theater Supply Company. The son is nationally known in theater circles and, like his father before him, is a leader in the business.

The son was notified of his father's death Wednesday night on a train en route from Dallas, Texas, to Memphis, Tenn., and this morning he will fly from Memphis to Atlanta in a special plane.

Mr. Oldknow was a member of St. Philip's Cathedral and of the Georgia Lodge No. 96, F. & A. M., and the B. P. O. Elks Lodge No. 78. "Economic nationalism is becoming more and more the order of the day in every country," declared Dr. Arnold J. Toynbee, director of studies in the Royal Institute of International Affairs, in an address on "England's Prospects" at the Glenn Memorial auditorium Wednesday night as the first presentation on the Emory University Student Lecture Association program for the season.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The office of Governor H. G. Kump revealed today that an attempt had been made to extort $100,000 from the state's chief executive.

Several days ago Governor Kump received a letter demanding $100,000 in bills be delivered by two uniformed state policemen to the clerk of a Charleston hotel at 9 o'clock last night. There also were threats if the request was not complied with.

The package was left but no call was made for it.

CAROLINIAN CONVICTED IN CLOSING OF BANK

BAYBORO, N. C., Nov. 22.—(AP)—W. J. Swan, president of the closed Eastern Bank and Trust Company of New Bern, was convicted here this afternoon of violation of state banking laws.

He was sentenced by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle to serve one year in prison on each of the four counts of the indictment, giving him a total sentence of four years.

auditorium Wednesday night as the first presentation on the Emory University Student Lecture Association program for the season.

Dr. Toynbee will give another lecture tonight in the same auditorium at 8:15 o'clock on "The Relativity of Historical Thought (How Democracy and Industrialism Color the Unconscious Philosophy of Contemporary Historians)."

Stating that the people of England are now trying to live as they did in the prosperity of the nineteenth century, Dr. Toynbee traced the economic development of England, showing how the country has been able to meet economic crises of the past.

"Facts can change quicker than people's attitude toward them," he said in pointing out the difficulty for English people to realize the conditions in which they now find themselves.

"The strategic position of England has been completely changed by the invention of flying," Dr. Toynbee declared. "England is bound to continental Europe by links as strong as steel, yet light as air, and we can no longer guarantee all parts of the British Empire against attack as England is no longer mistress of the sea."

Discussing the situation in India, Dr. Toynbee said that the only way to deal successfully with India is for England to bring her as rapidly as possible to full equality of state with the rest of the empire.

4 Utilities To Stop Pensions to Insull

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The four public utility companies formerly headed by Samuel Insull will cease paying him annual pensions totaling $21,000 at the end of 1933, it was announced today by George A. Ranney, vice chairman of the companies.

The decision to stop the payments was made at meetings of the boards of directors of the companies today.

Insull had been voted pensions by the Commonwealth Edison Company, the People's Gas, Light and Coke Company, the People's Gas Subsidary Company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

Ranney, in his formal announcement, said:

"The directors have carefully considered this question for some time and came to the decision that the continuance of the payment of Mr. Insull's pension is detrimental to the best interests of the companies and stockholders."

Mother, Father, Son Badly Hurt in Crash

Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Morrow, and their son, Leroy, all were severely injured in an automobile accident near Lawrenceville on the Athens-Atlanta highway.

The Windsor family was admitted to Emory University hospital. The mother, father and son were badly cut and bruised but none was critically hurt, physicians said.

They were injured when an automobile swerved in front of their car, forcing them into a ditch. The windshield was broken and they were cut by flying glass. DeKalb county police are investigating.

Texas Citrus Accord Tentatively Approved

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The framework for a national citrus stabilization program was completed Tuesday by the farm adjustment administration when Secretary Wallace gave tentative approval to a Texas citrus fruit marketing agreement.

It was the last of three regional agreements through which the national plan is to be carried out for limiting shipments of surplus citrus fruits in an effort to maintain higher prices to producers.

The other agreements covered Florida and the Arizona-California territory. The Texas agreement was sent to shippers there for signature and contains identical provisions for joining the national program.

The way was left open for Puerto Rican shippers to join and an agreement for that area is being developed there.

Like the others, the Texas agreement is based on the prorate principle under which market demands will be estimated in advance of shipments and the latter prorated among shippers in proportion to supplies on hand.

JOSEPH REECE TRIAL SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Nervously awaiting a defense motion for a delay, Criminal Judge Charles Gilbert today ordered Joseph L. Reece, former Tennessee commissioner of insurance and banking, into court tomorrow for trial on a grand larceny charge growing out of the disappearance of $100,000 of bonds from the insurance department.

The defense motion was denied. The committee developed today that while the bankers were dividing large profits in Fox and G. T. E. financing they were fighting among themselves to gather up what Dodge himself described as some of the "gravy."

Pecora showed that the banking groups participating in the early financing made approximately $4,000,000 in profit within two weeks from stock they acquired from G. T. E. at less than the market.

The bankers also made $2,850,000 in five days by selling G. T. E. debentures, without putting up any money, although Dodge explained the bankers stood the risk of the bonds not selling.

While Clarke was on the stand, Pecora brought out that Halsey-Sturdt & Company, in connection with the financing of a $55,000,000 Fox Film stock issue, was given an additional stock compensation which was worth more than $6,000,000 10 days after the deal was consummated.

The evidence showed that the Chicago banking firm was given an option of 300,000 shares of Fox Film stock for $35 a share, when the market price was $42.50, and that in 10 days it rose to $56.

Pecora described this as "additional gravy."

LEADERSHIP OF CWA CHANGED IN FLORIDA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, civil works administrator, announced today Lorenzo Whitton, of Jacksonville, had resigned as chairman of the Florida state advisory civil works council and C. B. Treadway, chairman of the Florida road department, had been appointed to succeed him.

THEATER FINANCING, CHASE LOSS-BARED

Pecora Develops Evidence of Huge Profits at Senate Probe.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Evidence of huge profits to bankers in the initial financing of General Theaters Equipment, Inc., and a loss of nearly $700,000 later to the Chase National bank and its affiliate, the Chase Securities Corporation, was presented today to senate investigators.

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the stock market investigating committee, developed the evidence through testimony by Murray W. Dodge, former vice president of the Chase affiliate and a director of General Theaters; Harley L. Clarke, former president of General Theaters, and a balance sheet submitted by Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase bank.

Aldrich's statement showed the bank and its affiliate invested in or lent the huge theater enterprise $89,530,047. Of this amount $68,572,180 had been written off as losses on October 1, 1933, leaving a balance of $19,767,866.

Of the total, the Chase bank provided $75,268,930 and wrote off $55,510,588, leaving a balance of $19,748,342. Chase Securities Corporation invested in or lent General Theaters Equipment and subsidiaries, including Fox Film, $14,071,166, and wrote off all but $9,524.

The vast movie enterprises of William Fox were taken over by G. T. E. in April, 1930, for $15,000,000, plus other considerations amounting to about $6,000,000, at a time when Fox Film and Fox Theaters owed about $90,000,000.

Fox has been summoned to appear before the investigators tomorrow to relate how, as the investigators claim, he "got out from under."

The committee developed today that while the bankers were dividing large profits in Fox and G. T. E. financing they were fighting among themselves to gather up what Dodge himself described as some of the "gravy."

Pecora showed that the banking groups participating in the early financing made approximately $4,000,000 in profit within two weeks from stock they acquired from G. T. E. at less than the market.

Anti-Aircraft Lights Are Ordered by Army

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The war department today placed contracts for 104 powerful anti-aircraft searchlights, built to stretch visible beams for miles.

The department described the order as "an important step in the modernization of the equipment of our army." The $2,015,900 cost will come out of the $7,000,000 allotted by the public works administration for coast defense.

The lights produce beams of 900,000-candle power. Of the total, 61 will be of the portable type and 43 of the mobile type.

RECEIVERSHIP ACTIONS OF RITTER ARE PROBED

Eight Charges Involving Federal Judge Filed in Miami Hearing.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Hearing by a congressional subcommittee into the official conduct of Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter centered today upon a mass of intricate receivership litigations in which conspiracy and fraud were charged and the judge accused of injudicious action in the appointment of receivers.

Eight counts involving Judge Ritter in the Trust company case were filed in the records of the hearing by a group of lawyers named by the committee to examine a long list of witnesses called to the stand.

Prosecution attorneys charged the existence of a conspiracy to throw the trust company into receivership and exploit the company's property. They also accused Judge Ritter of having knowledge of the alleged conspiracy, with aiding and abetting in it and with injudicious appointment of receivers, when he did not have jurisdiction. Six receivership actions against the trust company first were instituted in state courts and J. H. Therrill, of Ocala, named as receiver. The cases were transferred to federal court on petition of attorneys for a group of out-of-state bondholders and were abandoned by Therrill as receiver.

Judge Ritter appointed Clark D. Stearns and Julian S. Eaton, Miami attorneys, as federal receivers, but on an appeal by bondholders to the circuit court of appeals at New Orleans, Stearns and Eaton were required to surrender the trust properties to State Comptroller J. M. Lee. The appellate court held that Ritter had no jurisdiction.

The witness said that the league was formed to work for honest elections and he did not know how the members voted in having votes cast and honestly counted.

Attorney Ellender drove hard to get an explanation of why the Honest Election League withdrew from the investigation with the statement the league had lost faith and confidence in the sincerity of the senate committee. But all he got was an "I don't know" until the witness was rescued by Chairman Tom Connally, democratic Texas, who said if the witness didn't know that there was all there was to it.

Kernion testified that Huey P. Long's political machine, which supported Senator Overton, was responsible for the creation of the Honest Election League and then pointing his hand at Overton he said: "Overton is I like him, I like him as a man, but, by golly, he is in bad company."

Overton Aid Scores Honest Vote Group

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Honest Election League, an organization formed shortly before the election in which Senator John H. Overton defeated Senator Edwin Broussard, came in for attack today before the senate subcommittee investigating the Overton election.

For two hours, George Kernion, lawyer and historian, a league representative, testified of election conditions, described by him as "outrageous," and then withstood the assault of Allen Ellender, counsel for Overton, who sought to draw from the witness that the Honest Election League was an anti-Overton organization.

The witness said that the league was formed to work for honest elections and he did not know how the members voted in having votes cast and honestly counted.

Attorney Ellender drove hard to get an explanation of why the Honest Election League withdrew from the investigation with the statement the league had lost faith and confidence in the sincerity of the senate committee. But all he got was an "I don't know" until the witness was rescued by Chairman Tom Connally, democratic Texas, who said if the witness didn't know that there was all there was to it.

Kernion testified that Huey P. Long's political machine, which supported Senator Overton, was responsible for the creation of the Honest Election League and then pointing his hand at Overton he said: "Overton is I like him, I like him as a man, but, by golly, he is in bad company."

First Lady Visits Farm Designed To Aid Destitute

REDSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, carrying on her expressed plan to help the "forgotten man," stood among the graves of 200 colonial slaves on a wind-swept West Virginia hillside today and plotted a new freedom for destitute workers.

The wife of the president came upon the time-worn markers during an inspection tour of the 1,000-acre site of the government's homeland project for rehabilitation of poverty-stricken coal miners.

The tour was made with a party, including Colonel Louis McHenry Howe and officials of the department of the interior.

The president's wife, eager to see at first hand the work being done for housing families of more than 500 miners set the pace during the jaunt of several miles.

Bushrod Grimes, director of the project, said he expected the first houses, now under construction in New England, to arrive this week and that the first 50 families will be installed before Christmas.

Colonel Howe said the experiment is in line with President Roosevelt's plan to return destitute workers to the farm. Each family will be given a plot to cultivate.

The audience was a veritable "who's who" in local society, and while the presentation of the program was something new to Chicago opera lovers and, perhaps a bit puzzling at times, the applause was spontaneous and enthusiastic.

The program by the New York Music Guild was directed by Karl Krueger and consisted of the lively musical sketch by Gluck, "The Cadi Deceiv'd," and a companion piece, Rimski-Korsakov's "Mozart and Salieri."

The singers but one, Irene Williams, of Philadelphia, a lyric soprano, were former members of the Chicago Civic Opera Company which thrived under the regime of Samuel Insull.

The strike would involve 3,000 operating employees, including firemen, engineers, conductors and engineers, working on the Southern Pacific system from El Paso to New Orleans.

Mercolized Wax Gives the Skin Youth

To make your skin naturally lovely and to preserve this youthful beauty, use a little pure Mercolized Wax daily. Mercolized Wax peels off the outer layer of aged, or blemished skin, gently, but surely, removing all such imperfections as freckles, sallowness and dry, coarse skin. With the removal of the worn-out cuticle, the new skin is revealed clear, fresh, supple, with the lovely appearance of youth. Mercolized Wax, by its action, keeps the skin healthy and doted. Zaxolite quickly reduces wrinkles and other age signs. Simply dissolve one ounce powdered Zaxolite in a half pint of warm hazel and use daily as an exfoliant. "YES, There is a True Fat Reducer"

It Has The Power To Reduce Excess Fat Without Abnormal Dieting

FOR years science studied the problem of excess, abnormal fat. Through painstaking research a true reducer was found. Since then, doctors in all parts of the world have prescribed it for excess fat.

This factor has the proven power to reduce fat. Moderation helps, of course, but it is not necessary to starve yourself. Its action is independent of your diet. This proved reducing factor is employed in Marmola tablets. That is why they are so remarkably effective that their use has spread to 21 foreign countries. 20 million boxes have now been bought. The demand for Marmola flourishes in style and beauty centers of the world. Marmola is intended specifically for that type of person whose system turns food into fat instead of energy. You can know that it employs a really remarkable, tested reducing principle. At any good drug store.

HOUSEHOLD ARTS

Is there a child anywhere that does not love to have some soft, cunning, animal to hug? And wouldn't this collection make many a youngster gleeful? The animals are just the right size for little tots—the bear and the chicken are 9 inches high, the squirrel is 8 and the cat is 6 inches. And they are just as much fun to make as to play with. They are all made of but two pieces except that the bear's jacket is extra and the chicken's wing is of a separate piece so that it can flap properly.

In pattern 5011 you will find a transfer pattern of the pattern pieces for the four animals and detailed instructions and yardages for making them. Price of pattern 10 cents. Send your order to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

NANCY PAGE
Flower Holders Made of Sheet Lead Were Nancy's Next Gift.
BY FLORENCE La GANKE

Nancy was doing something new. Never before had she tried to work with metal, but the lead flower holder in the shops had stirred her creative desire. "I don't see," mused she, "why I couldn't make something like that." And make things she did.

She went to the plumber and purchased some sheet lead. She asked for it in a sheet which was 32 of an inch thick. Four thirty-seconds would have been an eighth of an inch, so this was less than the eighth.

Then she took some sheet about three and a pencil. She decided to protect her hands by wearing some old pig skin gloves. They were tough and yet pliable.

She measured one strip of lead which was 12 inches long and four inches high.

Before she proceeded much further she consulted the direction sheet. Nancy has such sheets for you and will send one as told in the instruction given at the end of this article.

She saw that the strip was marked off into inch sections which extended from the top to 11-12 inches from the bottom.

Having drawn these lines she took her shears and shaped each section as shown in the pattern. When finished she had a 12-inch strip, four inches high and divided at top into sections to 11-12 inches from bottom into 12 sections. These were pliable and could be bent back or curved at will.

The flowers were put in the circular opening at the base made by rolling the strip more or less tightly. The pointed strips in bent back held the stems in shape.

The second flower holder was made from a strip 6 inches long and 7 inches wide. She marked and cut it as shown in the illustration in the direction sheet.

Then she bent the strip on the line marked "6." Each small strip was wound loosely around a skewer, knitted or made of wire, and then the curls were bent in various directions. A flower stem was inserted in each curl, and the holder placed in the flower bowl which held plenty of water.

Detailed instructions for making "Flower Holders" may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution. (Copyright, 1933, for The Constitution.)

DID YOU KNOW?
That Ely Culbertson and Hal Sims once played as partners in a pair tournament and won it. It was the New Jersey state championship, if memory serves me right.

That Jacoby and some of his playmates will write a book on the "Expert's System." That same book likely came out about the first of the year.

That many of the teams in the Vanderbilt cup tournament used the "one-over-one" system. Probably the majority of teams used some form of that system.

That the team which finally won the event was practically unheard of before play started. Frankie Hendon was the best known of the four players who crashed through.

MRS McDANIEL WITH TERRACE CLUB
It is with real pleasure that this column announces that Mrs. Emma McDaniel, formerly the popular manager of the Georgia Bridge Club, has joined forces with the Terrace Club. It is a fine move on the part of both the Terrace Club and Mrs. McDaniel and the resulting partnership should prove highly successful. The Terrace Club, under the direction of Mrs. Robert Ingram and Mrs. Gladys Peabody, has done extremely well since its birth a short time ago. Its tournaments are well run, they are popular and the bridge club business is also flourishing at that club.

Mrs. McDaniel needs no introduction to the bridge playing talent of this city. Her gracious manner, her fair dealing toward all and her unlimited energy has made her a successful figure in the bridge club business since her advent more than a year ago. She has a host of friends throughout the city whom she cordially invites to visit her at the Terrace Club.

An Unconventional Four Notrump Bid
BY ELY CULBERTSON
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

This is the story of a hand in which a player, with a solid six-card major suit which had been assisted by his partner, carefully guided the bidding to a game contract in that suit and then suddenly made an about face and returned to notrump, the only contract in which a game was possible.

It also illustrates an exception to the conventional meaning of the four-notrump bid, and shows how good players can find a definite guide in the bidding to tell them when the four-notrump bid is not a force and a slam invitation, but indicates a desire to play the hand in notrump in an effort to make game.

And finally, it shows the inadvisability of a double based upon a bare possibility of defeating the contract by one trick.

1—East fears a game, and does not want a notrump bid by South, because he has strength in hearts and hopes to guide North and South into a game contract. He does not know, of course, that South has a solid spade suit.

2—A very bad double, based upon the fact that North bid the notrump and therefore the opening lead would probably trap his king. East also depended upon West for some strength, because of the belated club raise. Of course, West's raise was not justified, but it is also true that he had twice expected to make a free bid.

3—South knew that the double would probably trap his king. East also depended upon West for some strength, because of the belated club raise. Of course, West's raise was not justified, but it is also true that he had twice expected to make a free bid.

The four-notrump bid, East wisely passed, meanwhile regretting deeply that he had doubled a contract he might have defeated. He opened a club, and it was not for North to set up a second heart trick immediately. Six spades, two hearts and two clubs furnished the 10 tricks North needed for his contract.

TOMORROW'S HAND.
If South is playing a contract of six spades, which has been doubled by West, in what manner can he fulfill his contract?

2 NEGROES ADMIT PART IN HOLDUP GUN AFFRAY
Two of four negroes who Monday night shot a negro and a white man in a holdup on Lamar street, Wednesday confessed their part and were being held at the police station, according to police reports.

Joe Chandler and Walter Parks, negroes, were captured Tuesday night in Columbus and were brought back by Atlanta detectives. Parks and Chandler said they were with two other negroes when Cecil Johnson, 30, of 1733 Pelham road, and Otis Carr, negro, of a Little street address, were wounded in a robbery at the home of W. E. Cox, negro, at 48 Lamar street. Carr was critically wounded and is at Grady hospital while Johnson received a wound in the hand. Parks was shot once in the arm and was treated at Grady hospital early Wednesday.

EXPERT INVITED HERE ON HOUSING SURVEY
Mayor James L. Key Wednesday invited Dr. Robert D. Kohn, director of the housing division of the public works administration, to include Atlanta in his list of 20 municipalities he has announced he will inspect with a view of raising local areas and substitution of low cost housing projects under the construction program inaugurated by the government.

The mayor said several stretches of property need reclamation here and expressed the belief that the survey of Atlanta "will be mutually beneficial."

Friendly Counsel
BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Four names held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: There must be something terrible the matter with me. I can't keep a girl's interest longer than a month. Over and over I have had the same experience. I see one I like, ask her for a date, do everything I can to please her and give her a good time, when she of a sudden she refuses to date me or to accept any present from me. Why? SEARCHING.

Answer: When a patient goes to a physician and says, "Doctor, I am sick," I have a headache all the time," that physician asks a thousand and one questions, makes a thorough examination and ends by making microscopic tests. He can tell the patient of numerous conditions that might bring about the headache but he can only find out the cause of this particular pain by the process of elimination. So let's use the physician's method of trying to discover the reasons or the reason for a boy's being unable to hold the interest of any girl.

There are a few offenses against good manners and good taste which a girl abhors to such an extent that she will sit at home by herself rather than date the boy who commits them. There are some lesser offenses that irritate her but so long as she has no other boy-friend she will endure these. However, the first time a more acceptable prospect appears she is quick to set her cap for him, deserting the irritating one without a qualm of conscience or a sign of regret.

The first of these unforgivable sins is personal untidiness. She may not be conscious of any but a physical repulsion at dirty hands, disheveled hair, unpresentable clothes, dusty shoes and a sloppy appearance, but she is definitely aware of the warning that these marks of carelessness give her, warning of a deficiency of character as well as of good taste. She knows that men who get on in the world count these things important. She knows that pride in personal appearance denotes pride of another sort that is necessary to success.

It is possible for a boy to pull a clean handkerchief out of his pocket without his girl's seeing it, but he cannot pull out a solid one without her seeing it.

Nathalie Colby in writing about men remarks that the most difficult man to live with is the supreme egotist, the man who not only thinks of himself first, last and all the time, but the man who talks about himself all the time. Likewise he is the biggest bore in the world. He has no sense of proportions. He is selfish and self-centered. Now the young girl may not be able to put all this into words. She may not know why she is bored but she knows when she is bored and unless she is mighty hard pressed for beaux she won't be bored by an egotist.

Every decent girl hates the boy who is an uncontrollable "paver." Here again she may not get the full implication of this offense but she is instinctively repelled by the undue familiarity. She is not out for a fencing match or a wrestling match. She is out for pleasant entertainment and she doesn't get it when she is being pawed.

Another trait infuriating to the average girl is stinginess. The boy who makes dates, takes up the girl's time, wears out her chairs without ever making any sort of return for the entertainment she provides.

United Womanhood Salvation Of Nation, Miss Coltrane Says

Declaring that the country is in a crisis because of certain attacks on President Roosevelt's recovery plan, Miss Jenn Coltrane, of Concord, N. C., vice president of the Southeastern Council, said that united womanhood was the only thing that could save America in an address before the executive board of the state of Georgia at the Biltmore hotel Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. William P. Dunn, chairman for Georgia, presided, and a talk was also made by Mrs. Annet B. Franklin, chairman for state activities.

Miss Coltrane said that woman's importance in the movement was recognized by the president, who appointed a woman chairman for his recovery work in every county in the Union.

She named various women who had risen to high posts in recovery work who had been connected with the Southeastern Council.

This organization was formed for the purpose of bettering conditions in eight southeastern states, particularly with reference to obtaining a greater share of government funds.

Miss Coltrane showed, copy of an invitation by the council to Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, mother of the president, to be its guest at a dinner in Atlanta. Mrs. Roosevelt could not accept because she was leaving Warm Springs too soon.

A plea for a balance of agriculture and industry, prepared by the council to be sent to President Roosevelt, has been given the endorsement of Governor Talmadge.

The following women were present: Mrs. Eugene Talmadge, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mrs. Warren D. White, Mrs. James R. Bachman, Mrs. A. R. Colcord, Mrs. Stacy Ernest Hill, Mrs. Max E. Land, Mrs. John F. McDougald, Mrs. P. J. McGovern, Mrs. Sinclair Jacobs, Mrs. Wellington Stevenson, Mrs. W. F. Melton, Mrs. Katherine Connerat.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home
Big Saving! No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any drugist, get 24 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and causes chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of potassium pine which is the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Perhaps by the process of elimination this correspondent can discover why he can't keep a girl's interest. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Major Re-elected.
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Nov. 22. (AP)—Clifford S. Harley, widely known boat designer, was re-elected mayor of the town of Gulfport, near here, yesterday, defeating Andrew Potter, 158 to 118. Wirt T. Billings and John Booth were elected to the city council.

VIDES, is stingy. No matter how poor he may be, he can devise ways and means of showing his appreciation, of proving that he is not a dead-beat. For instance, there is a certain young man who makes a small salary and has to support his mother. He has to be thrifty, though he is by nature generous. So he says to his girl friend: "I can't afford to take you to the movies as often as I would like to, but I can buy one ticket occasionally, so let's go together when it suits you." That girl is herself a business woman and she understands the predicament in which he finds himself.

Another trait infuriating to the average girl is stinginess. The boy who makes dates, takes up the girl's time, wears out her chairs without ever making any sort of return for the entertainment she provides.

Jacket Team Scrimmages Hard in Preparation for Georgia

His football knee came out of joint and he winced with pain, but he shook it back in and came on up, flicking the ash off his cigarette.

"Well," he said, "I like Tech."

He was told that a lot of people do, but that also a lot of people like Georgia.

"Listen," he said, "this Tech team is coming along. It LIKES football, see? It LIKES it. And it has found out how to advance the ball. Did you see how scared Alabama was? You weren't here? Well, Alabama was scared to death. I just sat there and laughed. Tech should have won by three touchdowns."

"It is a big, rugged football team and it is well coached. And it has at last found out that it is really a powerful football team. From now on it will be a breeze. They will beat Georgia and then take Duke. What about this Duke team? They haven't met anyone. But Tech—say, Tech LIKES to play football."

"You know what? Tech will win by a couple. Georgia can't stand against them."

A reporter pointed out, quite meekly, that Georgia had stood up very well against Auburn and that if they had not Auburn would have won by 30 points.

"This is different," he said. "You know why I know? My old football knee is hurting. I got it in a Georgia game six years ago. It hasn't hurt like this since then."

"Well, I'll be seeing you. I just hoped I'd find you. You newspaper guys are always dodging the issue. Trouble is you can't tell what you mean. Why don't you just come on out and say Tech is to win?"

"Well," said the reporter, "you know this Georgia team is—"

"There you go," he said, "arguing with yourself. I'm telling you—Ouch—this old knee is hurting today. I remember how I got it. I was going down under a punt and this guy clipped me. Well, as I was saying—it's Tech. Those boys LIKE to play. Well, I got to go get down a bet. But don't you newspaper guys stick too close to Georgia, I'm telling you—"

THE OTHER SIDE OF IT.

He came right in and sat down.

"How about lunch?" he said.

"Well," said the reporter, "it's like this. There is a meeting on today—"

"I know, I know," said the fellow. "But I can get it over with right quick. It's all right for you newspaper writers here in the city to lean toward Tech. But don't make a mistake take on Saturday. Georgia is going to take them."

"I view the game as a toss-up and I—"

"Phooey," said this fellow. "No toss-up about it. What did Georgia do with Tulane for four years before this year? Lost, didn't they? You're blank right they did. Know why?"

"Well, Tulane," said the reporter, "had an unusually strong team and—"

"Phooey again," said the fellow. "Georgia lost because the Yale game and the New York game had come before Tulane. That's the only reason. Georgia would rather have won from Yale than Tulane. This year they shellacked Tulane because they played them early before the Yale and New York games."

"They lost to Tulane after those big games. This year they lost to Auburn. They'll be back in there Saturday. Now, you Atlanta writers do a pretty fair job, but get over this Tech complex."

"Really," said the reporter, "there are so many accusations that one doesn't—"

"Phooey," said the fellow. "I'm telling you the Red and Black will win Saturday. I used to play on the Georgia scrubs. And I know how those boys feel."

"I just wanted to drop around and put you wise. You aren't helping yourself with all this writing. It's one or the other, isn't it?"

"Well," said the reporter, "it appears to be a very close game. You see—"

"Phooey," said the fellow. And went out.

IT'S A GREAT LIFE.

There have been Tech-Georgia games before. I am aware of the fact that the late General Leonard Wood started this business by leading a Tech team to victory over Georgia in 1893.

This happens to be the fortieth anniversary of the first game—this contest which is scheduled for Saturday. And I suppose the partisan fires must have burned fiercely in the past.

But boys, that was before the good year 1933. We overdo all things. The flames are now blow torches.

I have bent courteous and attentive ears to the respective claims of the rival groups until the old ears are red and swollen and tremulous.

From all I have heard one-half of the crowd will shriek and fall dead on Saturday. The only thing which can keep down the mortality rate is a tie game.

"ROUND AND ROUND SHE GOES."

I recall hovering over a roulette table at Geauga Lake, Ohio, one hot summer's evening. And the dealer had a little chant which went:

"Round and round she goes,
And where she stops nobody knows."

And the odds of this topsy-turvy season have done little acts like that. Two weeks ago the odds were heavily in favor of Georgia to beat Tech. Those who took those odds are busily engaged in hedging. Because those Jackets are rated as even. With a lot of people saying they have found themselves and are coming forward while Georgia is going back after winning seven straight.

"You pays your money and you takes your choice."

THE BIG BAD BEAR—STORIES.

Georgia seems to have out-beated the Techs to date. That is, the Bulldogs have more injured men than the Jackets. One judged there was some slight irritation at this.

The lights burned late at the Flats Wednesday afternoon. The Jackets were going through their paces with the hawk eyes of the coaches on every move. Georgia worked until darkness covered the field.

Today is the last day for hard work. Yesterday was the last day for intensive scrimmages.

It appears to these poor eyes to be a matter of Georgia getting her man power in there. If so, the Bulldogs should win. But this Tech team has never been beaten all year. A few teams have managed to out-oke it.

Kentucky won, 7 to 6. Vanderbilt won, 9 to 6. Tulane won, 7 to 0, in the mud. Alabama won, 12 to 9.

If I were you I would manage to be there to see what happens. Because, pals, I have no idea what will happen.

BLUEBIRDS PLAY New Tenpin Game 'QUITS' Mark Made AT KENTUCKY; BREWER RESIGNS Here

Games Today Moved Up for B. H. S.-T. H. S. Scrap.

By Roy White.

University School for Boys and Commercial High will close their football season at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Ponce de Leon park, while Russell High will play its home game at 2:30 o'clock with Fulton High as opponents on the East Point gridiron.

The games were moved up from Friday afternoon, due to the unusual interest being shown in the city championship game Friday afternoon between Tech High and Boys' High at Ponce de Leon park.

The University game was originally planned for Friday night, and after a couple of changes in time, will be played this afternoon.

DESERVE CREDIT. Both Coach Brant Bredell, at University, and Rufus Godwin, at Commercial, deserve much credit for their efforts during the present season, although neither has an outstanding record.

When practice was called early in September only 11 youngsters reported to Bredell at Piedmont park. That time four others have been added to the squad which has played a hard schedule. University has one record that has never been equalled and that is for substitutions. In several of the games the 11 players have played 60 minutes and the substitutes have averaged less than one per game in the past five contests.

The Bluebirds are the "iron men" of prep football circles.

In a season when several all-time marks have been broken, the John Bell team bowled in the City Tenpin League, burned up the woods with their terrific onslaught of the pins last night and shattered the all-time record for a single game of tenpin bowling by a five-man team as they amassed the tremendous score of 1,100.

The former record for Atlanta for a total team score in tenpin bowling in the city tournament in 1930 when the Knights of Columbus team bowled a 1,022 game.

The line-up of the John Bell team that set the new all-time record for a single game of tenpin bowling was: 232; Johnson, 210; Cowell, 214; Dryden, 203; and Bell, 198. John Bell, the second high average man of the league, was the low man for the game, however, it was the uncanny John Linnam Bell that turned in a double strike the last part of the game to put the team over the high-water mark.

Aloysius Sosong is continuing his heavy pin bowling in the City Tenpin League and last night, after a close race of the present season for the lead, he passed John Bell and went into the lead for the high individual average of the city, besting Bell's average by fifteen pins.

Coach Will Continue Until After 'Turkey Day' Game.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 22.—(AP) Harry Gamage, football coach at the University of Kentucky, submitted his resignation today to the athletic council, and it was accepted.

Gamage's five-year contract expires July 1. His salary will be paid until then provided he does not sign another coaching contract in the interim.

Beyond intimating that he intended to retire entirely from coaching, Gamage made no comment on the resignation. Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, chairman of the athletic council, appointed a committee to consider a successor.

POSSIBLE SUCCESSORS. Major Ralph Sasse, former Army coach, and Paul Jenkins, Kentucky alumnus and coach of Ashland high school's state championship football team, are most prominently mentioned for the place.

Kentucky's team has been comparatively unsuccessful this year. The high points of the season were a 7-0 defeat of Georgia Tech and the holding of Duke to a one-touchdown victory.

Gamage will continue in control of the football team for the game Thanksgiving Day with Tennessee. Some alumni are urging that a post-season game with Centre College, which Kentucky has not played for almost 10 years, be arranged.

The resignation was accepted at an executive session of the athletic council. Major B. E. Brewer, a member of the council, walked out of the room and remarked: "That's the last council meeting I'll ever attend."

BREWER RESIGNS. Asked if that meant he was resigning from the council, Brewer said, "It does the cause this action he would not say."

In his statement to the council, delivered orally, Coach Gamage said he bore no ill-feeling toward anyone; that he did not blame the alumni, fans and such groups of the student body who had criticized his work.

"Any coach who can not produce a championship team in seven years, as I have failed to do," said Gamage, "should step down and let someone else try."

'Gators Look Good In Hard Workout

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 22.—(AP) The University of Florida 'Gators' put on their best blocking and tackling exhibition of the season today when the backs slashed through a crumbling freshman team in a surprise scrimmage.

Early exercise in the rudiments of the game is on hand for tomorrow, when the end-of-year prep team will see the wind-up of preparation for the homecoming game with Auburn on Florida field Saturday afternoon.

One of the highlights of the season was the performance of Jimmy Hughes, senior fullback, who will play his last game on home territory Saturday. Jack Beckwith was not far behind him with place of the homecoming game.

Bill Chase, back after a long layoff with an injury, looked good for the short time he was placed in the mele.

Florida's Plays Confuse Auburn

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 22.—(AP) Freshmen back in Florida plays through the line of the Auburn Plainsmen for consistent gains in a hard scrimmage session here today. Coach Chet Wynne reiterated his fears for the future of the 'Gators' at Gainesville, Fla., as the light Auburn line men were taken out of play by the heavier freshmen forward wall. Levi was ruled out of play.

Welch is still bothered by an injured shoulder.

Tony Is Favored Over 'Keed' Friday

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—For one of the few times in its history, Kid Chocolate will be a number in the betting when he steps into the ring at Madison Square Garden Friday night for his match with Tony Canzoneri.

Canzoneri, former lightweight champion, ruled an 8-to-5 choice today with prospects of being as good as 2 to 1 by fight time.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(UP)—Lester Brown, end, of Everett, Mass., today was elected captain of the 1934 Fordham University football team. He succeeds Edward Danowski, of Riverhead, N. Y.

Uniform Golf Teaching Sought by P. G. A. Body

By Paul Mickelson.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(AP)—John J. Duffer, whose head has been swimming in one big question mark all these years as he listens to professional arguments about the "only way" to learn and play golf, is going to get a uniform set of rules today at the annual meeting of the Professional Golfers' Association of America.

Under a plan adopted today at the annual meeting of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, a sweeping reform movement in teaching golf is being inaugurated. If it is successful, teaching of golf under the P. G. A. banner will be uniform in every city, town, village and hamlet in the United States. The plan, offered by George Jacobus, president of the P. G. A., is as follows:

SUBMIT IDEAS. Every member of the P. G. A. will be asked to submit his idea of teaching golf and why he thinks it's better than any other plan.

Sectional and local boards will study the various teaching plans and, with the aid of a prominent physical education coach, will select the best plan to be adopted.

The physician will prescribe the benefits of the sectional plan from a physical standpoint.

Sectional and local boards will send their plans to a national board of selection to be composed of some of America's outstanding golf teachers, amateur golfers, several national prominent physicians and physical culturists. The president of the United States Golf Association also will be invited to join the national board. This board will study every suggested plan, agree on one, and then make it stick as the "uniform and adopted set of rules for instruction."

All members of the P. G. A. will be expected to adopt the adopted set of rules and will risk membership in the P. G. A. if they refuse. A national examining board will be organized to test in every member of the P. G. A. on the new set of rules. Only those who pass will be admitted to P. G. A. membership unless he knows the uniform set of teaching rules and teaches them to his pupils.

BUILD IT UP. "We've been dissecting the swing long enough," said President Jacobus. "Now we feel we can build it up. Our idea is that golf has advanced far enough so we can determine the best and soundest method of teaching. Trick ideas that only tend to confuse the starter and duffer are going to be out. Why should a golf pupil learn to play the game one way in San Francisco, for instance, and another way in New York, Florida or New Mexico? We want the one best way and we want to keep on improving that way to make our service more valuable to the golfing public."

Membership dues in the P. G. A. were reduced from $40 to $25 a year at the meeting. Election of officers will be held tomorrow.

POINTS AT PREMIUM. Points have been at a premium in the Syracuse-Columbia rivalry for two years but Columbia, at least, should do some scoring this time if only to break the monotony of a scoreless draw that resulted in 1932 and 1931.

Moorehead Definitely Out for Tech Game Here Saturday

TIGERS ALONE IN UNDEFEATED CLASS IN DIXIE

Mississippi State Unlike to Defeat Tigers in Annual Game Saturday

Louisiana State University, the only southeastern conference team that has escaped defeat this season, expects to preserve its record for at least another week.

Bill Jones' Tigers take on Mississippi State Saturday at Baton Rouge and should win handily. But Louisiana's closing assignments against Tulane and Tennessee are as tough as any team in the country—Army, with Navy and Notre Dame remaining, not excluded.

Mississippi State, stronger than in any recent campaign, may give L. S. U. trouble for a while, but the Starkville outfit hasn't the man power to compete 60 minutes with Louisiana.

Judging from the daily hospital bulletins issued from the rival gridiron camps, Coaches Harry Mehre, of Georgia, and Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, will be lucky to get 100 able-bodied men on the field by game time. Every day brings its quota of injuries, with the Georgia outlook darker than that of Tech.

Alexander, with confidence in Tech's newly found offense, has picked the engineers to win. Around 30,000 will see the game here.

Mississippi, shattered by Tennessee and L. S. U., may be in just the right mood to spoil Centenary's unscathed record.

Centenary apparently has guns enough to win, but the Mississippians may slip across a touchdown.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Alex. Morrison says:

Many times a player will get to hitting the ball decidedly to the left of his intended line of play.

The ball may fly in either a hook or slice curve without apparent reason.

The swing in both cases seems to be the same. In fact, it seems to be identical the same swing that affords the player a straight ball.

However, the player doesn't realize that he has changed his stance, particularly the position of his feet, in relation to the ball.

The fault in direction is, no doubt, due to having the ball too far forward of the feet.

Getting it back about opposite the middle of the feet will help.

OLYMPIC BODY SEEKS FREEDOM FOR 1936 MEET

A. A. U. To Be Backed on Jewish Participation Stand.

By Foster Hailey.

Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The American Olympic Association, composed of every major amateur sports governing body of the country, today held out the olive branch to Germany on the question of Jewish participation in sports.

A resolution, temporizing the stand taken by the Amateur Athletic Union at its Pittsburgh convention, was unanimously adopted. It expressed the hope that full freedom of participation would be extended German athletes of Jewish faith and promised American participation if that were done.

As it convened in quadrennial session it appeared likely the association would follow the stand taken by the A. A. U., its major member, and declare for American withdrawal from the 1936 games unless the German government "in fact as well as in theory" abided by the Olympic principle of non-discrimination against any race, color or religion.

Such a resolution was offered. But after listening to a stirring address by Brigadier General Charles H. Sherrill, American member of the international Olympic committee, in which he warned that such action would do more harm than good, not only in Germany, but in the United States as well, the more temperate course was taken by the convention.

One factor influencing the action was the cablegram yesterday from Dr. Theodore Lewald, himself of Jewish descent, and the other two German members of the international committee, declaring the pledge given the committee at Vienna in June was being adhered to.

A resolution, identical to that adopted by the A. A. U., was unanimously passed, asking President Roosevelt to direct a "generous" amount of public works funds to build athletic and recreational parks and a proposed "amateur code" reconciling present inconsistencies between various sports was discussed.

The amateur code finally was referred to the executive committee for further study.

Avery Brundage was re-elected president of the association for another term. Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, of Detroit, as treasurer. Dr. Grace Hammond was re-elected president emeritus.

Frederick W. Rubien was re-elected secretary and Gustavus Town Kirby succeeded George W. Graves, of Detroit, as treasurer.

First Clarence Overend, graduate manager of athletics at Carnegie Tech, telephoned and a 1934 game was arranged for November 17, with a second one for the following year.

Later came another call, this time from T. E. Price, chairman of the committee arranging the annual festival of palms post-season game for New Year's day in Miami. In this talk, arrangements were completed for the 1,500-mile trip south by the Dukes to play the undefeated Miami University Hurricane with a $3,500 expense guarantee.

'Uncle Wilbert' at Rest

Uncle Wilbert Robinson, The Old Deer Hunter

These Are Happy Days for Cracker President Down at Dover Hall.

By Jimmy Jones.

The deer season has opened in south Georgia and this means that between now and January 5, when the deer season closes, the arboreal vistas of Dover Hall and its surrounding woodland will see a great deal of your Uncle Wilbert Robinson and his pack of hounds.

It is very difficult not to see a great deal of Mr. Robinson and his retinue when he starts out on a deer hunt. It is an impressive sight to be sure when that gentleman, clad in rustic hunter's garb, emerges from the door of one of the cottages in the crisp early morning, with the deer dogs yelping and prancing about his feet.

Since he usually has a lot of novices on the hunt, such as newspapermen and other visitors, Mr. Robinson is forced to deal out a lot of advice on the art of deer hunting, which he does in a robust and kindly voice.

Sometimes the "newspaper fellows," as he terms them, are not awake and Mr. Robinson goes ahead without them. He dilly-dallies about a bit, fusses at the tardy arrivals and finally orders John Strickland, the famous guide, to take the hounds and start beating the brush.

Then with a few parting shouts at the hired help about the place and a final gulp of black coffee, your Uncle Wilbert is off behind the hounds, sometimes on horseback (pity the poor horse) sometimes in a gully jumping Ford and sometimes on foot.

In case some of the guests fail to make the early morning drive, Mr. Robinson, faithful host that he is, arranges a late afternoon deer hunt for them. This the newspapermen usually manage to make.

It is on these hunts that Mr. Robinson is at his greatest as an outdoor man. Always a lover of hunting in the off-season, he enjoys these outings as would the very best young in the group. Every hunt is a new experience for him and he rarely returns empty handed.

Despite the fact that he recently observed his seventieth birthday, Uncle Robby is one of the best hands with a gun you ever saw. He is an expert quail and dove shot and rarely misses a chance on the wild ducks. He can outshoot the average man 20 years his junior.

He has always been a great lover of dogs, all kinds of dogs. They say that every worthy while man loves dogs. If this is true, your Uncle Wilbert Robinson is perfect.

There was a time, before he bought a majority in Dover Hall, near Brunswick, that Uncle Robby was a duck shooter. That was back when he played with the old Baltimore Orioles and later when he coached the Giants for McGraw.

In those days, Mr. Robinson would head for the Chesapeake bay region as soon as winter came and spend most of his time in the duck woods. He became a crack duck shot, one of the best on the coast.

Later, after he became president and manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Uncle Robby became interested in south Georgia and Dover Hall. This club he helped organize with a famous group of sportsmen, including Colonel T. H. Huston, now a director of the Crackers, and later on he and the colonel became the sole custodians.

From shooting ducks in the blinds, Uncle Robby changed his hobby to shooting deer in the south Georgia swamps, quail out in the sedge heaths and marsh hens on the marshes of Glynn.

Back in the old days when he traveled on the train with his duck dogs, Mr. Robinson had a most unusual little use and most of the sportsmen of the day had to ride in the day coaches with their dogs leashed about them. One fall day the stout Mr. Robinson boarded a train out of Baltimore with a string of fine Hudson bay retrievers attached to his arm.

The ride was a long one, through wild and woolly country and finally both your Uncle Robby and the dogs grew restless. Mr. Robinson told the conductor that he first, and he came to within 10 miles of his destination, to let him know and he would get off with the dogs and hike the rest of the way. (He could always do a lot of hiking.) The conductor promised to notify him.

Finally, after rattling on many more miles, the conductor stuck his

BUCK CHAPMAN STILL AILING; OTHERS HURT

Harry Mehre Will Depend Upon Reserve Guards in Contest.

By Al Smith.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 22.—Georgia's injury-ridden football squad toiled through a long defensive scrimmage this afternoon in preparation for the Tech game Saturday.

Leroy Moorehead, rated the best guard in the south, is definitely out. Until this morning it was felt that he would be able to play. This afternoon trainers said it was impossible.

Butch McCullough, injured Tuesday, sat with Moorehead and watched the practice. McCullough has a slight chance to play for a while but Georgia will depend on the reserve guards, John Brown and Frank Johnson, the latter a sophomore, will be the guards.

STARS AILING. Buck Chapman, fullback, was still able to walk through plays but unable to run. He did not play against Auburn. Al Minot, who was shifted from halfback to fullback for the Auburn game, and Bill David, another reserve, were used at fullback.

It is quite possible that David will see a lot of service Saturday.

Graham Batchelor, veteran end and captain, took part in the scrimmage but retired after a few minutes of play. He is slowed up considerably.

John McKnight, who missed the Yale and Auburn games because of an injured shoulder, was back in uniform today and played for a while at center.

WEAKENED. Georgia figures to be weakened at fullback and at the guards.

Two reserve ends, Henry Wagoner and Alex Ashford, were used during a great deal of the scrimmage today.

The Georgia squad was still lethargic this afternoon as run by the Red Devils, caused trouble all afternoon.

Another scrimmage is set for Thursday. The Georgia team will arrive in Atlanta Friday night.

'SINK THE NAVY' IS ARMY SPIRIT

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 22.—(AP)—"Sink the navy" spirit reached a new high here today.

Opening at reveille when sheets appeared stretched between the interior window of barracks containing such expressions as "Go get 'em, Jabbo," "Beat 'em, Buckler," "Down with the navy!" and "On to Philadelphia," and closing with a rally in the cadet mess hall, the garrison could talk nothing else but the Navy game which will be played on Saturday.

Lieutenant Davidson gave the first two teams long dummy scrimmages to scrub teams showing the Navy plays and ended up by holding a brief live tackling scrimmage with the varsity on the attack.

Navy Varsity In Hard Drill.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 22.—(AP) The Navy varsity football team in preparation for the service classic Saturday went through a hard drill late today, under floodlights, with the stress placed on defensive work against Army plays.

Practically the entire midshipmen regiment, in white uniforms lined the sidelines to watch. Before starting practice each member of the squad had the tackling dummy ten times and took a short workout in blocking.

Rip Miller put the varsity groups against a "B" squad eleven with a backfield having the names of the Army players, their backs a dummy and real scrimmages against the Cadet plays, the varsity groups took the offensive in a scrimmage with the "B" squad and plebes.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND. "A fellow can't get along without dogs, even in the baseball business," he remonstrated. And so Uncle Robby bought "Little Cracker," and took him to Dover Hall with him.

"Little Cracker" is having a great time down there, Uncle Robby writes. He is learning to chase the hogs around, swinging in their tails, and maybe he will learn to chase the deer, too.

"Robby" (as Ma Robinson has always called him) cannot be suppressed when it comes to buying dogs. "Ma" insists that her recent illness was the result of riding across a cornfield in a car with her husband, to look at a deer dog.

It is great to have such a lovable and wholesome character as Uncle Robby connected with Atlanta baseball. He has done a lot with his eternal good humor to cheer the dreary surroundings of a loser. And next season, Uncle Robby hopes to have a winner.

"If we don't I'm going to get me a fishing pole and boat, and sit on the bank fishing every summer for the rest of my life." This is all right, Uncle Robby, but if you do, come up and fish on the banks of the Chattahoochee so you can be close by.

IS IT TOO BIG?

Loughran Rallies To Win

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The most endearing of the big fellows, young old Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, added another gem to his long victory string tonight as he outpointed Ray Impellitteri, newest giant of the ring, after a fifty-five round bout, most warded him out of the ring with a technical knockout defeat in the sixth round.

New York rings haven't seen in years the sight to which a crowd of 6,000 was treated in the big barn of the Bronx coliseum as Loughran, in complete command up to the sixth round, suddenly ran into a risky up-purcut that tore a deep gash in the left corner of his mouth.

Tommy staggered back as blood poured from the wound and streamed down his chest. Instantly Referee Pete Hartley, once a good welterweight, stepped in, peered at the wound, and lifted his arms like a football official signalling a touchdown. Only this time he meant that the gallant old-timer had been stopped by the 255 1/2-pound giant who was waging his first major battle.

Impellitteri, only 24 years old, but 6 feet 7 1/2 inches tall, and a perfectly schooled boxer, promptly went to his corner and sat down as the crowd howled hysterically. Hartley mopped his face with his handkerchief, and General John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, fought his way through the ringside to Loughran's side.

Loughran saw him coming and stepped in his efforts to get at Impellitteri on his stool. He raced to the action and yelled his pleas to the commissioner.

As soon as he could lift his voice high enough above the clamor he ordered the fight continued. Hartley summoned Impellitteri from his chair as the giant's managers protested bitterly.

No one about the ringside could ever remember a similar instance of a commissioner overruling a referee, but that made no difference to Loughran. Fighting as brilliantly as at any time in his long and gallant career, the Philadelphia veteran never stopped punching from that moment on, and won the unanimous decision of the judges and referee at the end of the 10 rounds.

Improvements. BROWNWOOD, Texas, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Improvement was reported tonight in the condition of Lucien Long, injured Daniel Baker College freshman football player, and physicians said there was some hope for his recovery. Long, whose home is in Tallahassee, Fla., was injured internally last Saturday in a game between the Daniel Baker team and the Kelly field fliers from San Antonio.
